I Couldn't Keep the Suit They Tailored to Me

Channel: Brandon Carter · Published: Oct 20, 2026 · Watch: https://www.youtube.com/shorts/R7G9HQ00ABE Source: full transcript

📋 Executive Summary

Brandon Carter shares a short anecdote from his fitness modeling days: all wardrobe — even custom-tailored pieces — had to be returned, and when he asked to keep a suit tailored to him, Diddy personally said no.

📑 Contents

- 🧥 Wardrobe Policy on Fitness Model Shoots
- 👔 The Tailored Suit Incident
- 😬 Diddy Says No — End of Discussion

🧥 Wardrobe Policy on Fitness Model Shoots 0:00

- As a fitness model, Brandon and other models were required to return all clothing after shoots
  - This included everything — even underwear
  - Models did not get to keep any of the wardrobe items, regardless of how personal or fitted they were

👔 The Tailored Suit Incident 0:00

- On one particular shoot, Brandon wore a suit that had been tailored specifically to his measurements
  - Because it was custom-fitted to him, he felt it was reasonable to ask if he could keep it
  - He asked the person who had hired the models whether he could have the suit
  - That person walked over to the client — who turned out to be Diddy — and asked on his behalf
  - Brandon could not hear the conversation

😬 Diddy Says No — End of Discussion 0:22

- Diddy looked over at Brandon and said no
- The interviewer asked if the moment felt intimidating and whether Brandon considered pushing further
- Brandon's response was unambiguous: "No, I definitely wasn't going to push."
  - The implication being that Diddy's presence alone was enough to shut the conversation down entirely