Stage 1: Profile Optimization 0:44

- Starting point: Chad had only 31 likes despite being a model for Versace — described as chiseled six-pack, perfect jawline, 10/10 looks
- Three core problems were identified before any fixes were applied:
  - Problem 1 — Distance set to only 7 miles
    - Severely limited the pool of potential matches to a tiny local radius
    - Fix: widened distance preference significantly to cast a broader net
  - Problem 2 — Age range too narrow (18–23 only)
    - Fix: expanded age range to include older women and " milfs"
  - Problem 3 — Chad had been banned from Tinder
    - He got banned after sending an immature "deez nuts" joke to a match
    - Fix: used tactics from Max's playbooks / the dating app setup guide to get him unbanned and set up a clean, optimized profile
- Bio and prompt strategy:
  - Used the line "6'1 looking for a rave wifey" to signal a specific lifestyle and attract like-minded women
    - A rave-interested girl messaged him first saying "Please be my rave husband. You're the most beautiful man I've ever seen in my life."
  - Added the prompt "Life's too short not to swipe right" — described as fun and flirty to encourage women to message first
- Picture strategy — mix of real and AI-generated photos:
  - The team's stated position: "That is the meta. You all have to use AI pictures."
  - Real photos kept were ones that were either impossible to fake (mirror/window reflections) or captured authentic lifestyle moments (rave attire, Texas cowboy/festival look)
  - AI photos were used for aspirational or logistically difficult shots:

| Photo                           | Real or AI | Purpose                    |
|---------------------------------|------------|----------------------------|
| Mirror/window reflection selfie | Real       | Effortless, authentic      |
| Surfer boy aesthetic            | AI         | Lifestyle appeal           |
| Rave attire with mask           | Real       | Targets rave girl audience |
| Holding a firearm               | AI         | Status/masculinity appeal  |
| Boat aesthetic                  | AI         | Lifestyle/status signaling |
| Texas cowboy look               | Real       | Festival/lifestyle appeal  |

- Rationale for AI pictures: complex, high-status activities (shooting guns, being on a boat) are hard to capture naturally;
- Results of optimization:
  - Went from 31 likes to 3,000+ likes
  - So many matches came in that two additional people had to help run the account
  - Constant stream of phone numbers back-to-back
  - Girls began messaging him first unprompted

Stage 2: Why Chad Needed Help 0:22

- Core argument: if a physically elite man (Versace model) was getting only 31 likes, average men have essentially no chance without optimization
  - "You have no chance of surviving on Tinder if Chad is struggling to get likes these days."
- Chad's personal background and limiting factors:
  - Described as a "sheltered Christian lamb" who had limited experience with women
  - Was a virgin at the start of the coaching process
  - Struggled heavily with overthinking — lived in his head rather than acting in the real world
  - Let women walk over him in relationships; said things like "I don't feel good enough" and "I don't know what to do"
  - Was unsure whether to stay with a disrespectful girl
- Coaching addressed the mental/behavioral issues alongside the profile:
  - Chad accepted advice to stop overthinking, approached a 26-year-old woman from New York, had a flirty conversation, and got her number
  - Framed as proof that the mental block — not looks — was the main obstacle
- Chad's stated goals on his application:
  - Understand the game and female nature to improve his sex life and dating life
  - Teach others the skill eventually
  - Current lifestyle: model, social media influencer, caretaker; hobbies include working out, skateboarding, and festivals
- The broader point for average viewers:
  - "It was all in his head and it is probably in your head as well."
  - A 5'3" Asian man and the "Chud" (short, unattractive, overweight) from a previous video were cited as examples of non-Chads also getting results

💞 Stage 3: Getting Chad a Long-Term Relationship 0:44

- Chad had a specific girl in mind — Emma, also Christian — and wanted a relationship with her
- Situation breakdown:
  - They met, had sex on the first date, Chad sent a playful text that backfired — she didn't reply
  - Re-entry line crafted by Deni Ops: "Emma, we need to talk" — designed to restart the conversation
- Ongoing management of Chad's roster of women:
  - One girl saw evidence he was seeing another woman; the team advised him to tell her it was his "sister-in-law" to cover it
  - Chad was managing multiple women simultaneously (referred to throughout as "Laylas" — a euphemism for women he was sleeping with)
  - He was posting stories with girls to provoke jealousy reactions
  - He got an STD test given the volume of partners
- Key tactic taught — "fake commitment" strategy:
  - When a girl named Emma expressed fear of being played and suspected he had a roster, the scripted response was: "I wouldn't do that to you, Emma, since I'm considering getting us serious and exclusive."
  - Described explicitly as helping him "brainwash a girl into thinking there's a long-term relationship at play"
- Outcome for Chad mentally:
  - Transitioned from overthinking logistics to confidently managing which girl to see on which day
  - Was managing "Brunette Emma" and "Blonde Emma" simultaneously
  - Girls described as becoming "obsessed" with him

🏆 Stage 4: End Game & Final Results 0:44

- Six different women in a single week — highlighted as a standout metric
- Girls sending messages like "I want to eat you," "I want to put my nails all over your abs"
- Transformed from: sheltered Christian virgin → "D1 slayer" in Deni Ops' framing
- Hinge account also performing strongly alongside Tinder
- Account went from being ghosted to women messaging first and worshipping him
- Reference to a contrast case — "Chud" video:
  - Unattractive, short, overweight man taken from 0 likes to 200+ likes and hundreds of matches using the same optimization approach
- Closing takeaway:
  - "If Chad needs help with optimization on his Tinder profile, you need it as well because he's not an exception to the rule."
  - Call to action: reach out to Deni Ops for coaching; "sitting around and doing nothing is going to get you nothing"
