📋 Executive Summary

ZssBecker argues that early in your career, raw emotional drive like fear, anger, envy, and desperation is more useful than passion, and that refinement and therapy can wait until after you've made it.

F^ck passion.

When you are first trying to "make it," lean into despicable, envy-driven, desperately insecure Anakin Skywalker feral rage.

Fear. Anger. Pain. It's healthy to have these. Means you care. Brute force is the way early on.

You can go to therapy when you're rich.
