

How I Consistently get 1k+ likes on Tinder (even if ur dumb)

Channel: Deni Ops · Published: Aug 02, 2026 · Watch: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=NCIJlibWxXI> Source: full transcript

Executive Summary

Deni walks through his complete dating-app formula — three photo principles, copy-paste bios and prompts, and a live Tinder build for a late-30s man using AI-generated images — claiming it produces 1,000+ likes regardless of looks.

Contents

-  The Three Core Photo Principles
-  Principle 1: Candid Photos
-  Principle 2: Effortless (Not Try-Hard) Presentation
-  Principle 3: Polarizing & Unique Photos
-  Photo Aesthetic Cheat Sheet
-  Bio Templates
-  Prompt Templates
-  Live Account Build (Late-30s Man)
-  Results

The Three Core Photo Principles 0:44

- Every picture follows a three-part formula that drives 1,000+ likes
 - The three principles are: Candid, Effortless, and Polarizing & Unique
- Claims these principles work regardless of physical attractiveness
- AI-generated photos are an explicitly endorsed fallback for unattractive or lazy users

Principle 1: Candid Photos 1:30

- Definition: spontaneous-looking shots where the subject is NOT looking at the camera or posing for it
 - Should look like "a day in the life" — you in your natural element
 - Key appeal: they show real emotion, look relaxed, and project an "effortless sexy vibe"
- Examples from his own Hinge/Tinder profile:
 - Lying on a boat pretending to be asleep (abs visible but not flexed)

- Working on a laptop in bed — sells the fantasy of everyday life with you
- Smiling and looking away at dinner — simulates what a date with you feels like
- Shirtless on a yacht looking into the distance — lifestyle/candid hybrid
- Golden rule: the subject should appear unaware a photo is being taken

Principle 2: Effortless (Not Try-Hard) Presentation 3:21

- Core message: never pose like a gym try-hard — it signals low status
 - Flexing every muscle signals the physique is a novelty, not a baseline — makes you look insecure
 - Casual effortless shots signal "this is just how I look year-round"
- High-status analogy: tagging a restaurant location on Instagram looks low-status because it signals you've never been somewhere nice before; not tagging it looks high-status
- Split-test result: his casual shirtless photo outperformed a more muscular man's hard-flex photo
 - His conclusion: girls prefer effortlessly attractive over objectively more muscular but try-hard
- Even 10% of a good physique photographed effortlessly beats a better physique photographed in a try-hard way
- The same principle applies to every photo type — casual always beats posed/thirsty

Principle 3: Polarizing & Unique Photos 5:57

- Standing out matters more than looking conventionally attractive
 - His own edge: being Afghan in his area makes him the only one of his type — automatic novelty
- Photos to avoid (generic/sheep-herd):
 - Mirror selfies
 - Endless group photos (she'll look at your friends instead of you)
 - Generic hiking photos
- Goal: show a lifestyle and personality nobody else in her queue is showing

Photo Aesthetic Cheat Sheet 6:18

- Lifestyle/status shots:
 - Car or motorbike
 - Restaurant or bar (boosts perceived status)
 - Cafe (attracts alt/niche girls)
 - City street with sky background (previews what a date with you looks like)
 - Yacht or boat
- Physical/body shots:
 - Sauna — sexual, high-energy, looks casual

- Swimming pool or hot tub — same vibe as sauna
- Workwear:
 - Blue-collar work clothes perform well (especially in the UK, reportedly also the US)
- Hobby shots:
 - Playing an instrument
 - Chopping wood
 - Working on a laptop
 - Reading
 - Cooking in the kitchen (rare among men — stands out)
- Active/outdoors:
 - Swimming, running, rock climbing, surfing
- Inspiration sourcing:
 - Use Pinterest or Instagram to find pose inspiration and copy how attractive men stand/sit
- For less attractive or lazy guys: use AI-generated photos — described as a full substitute for real photos

Bio Templates 8:30

- Copy-paste bio lines from client profiles:
 - "Looking for my travel wifey. I heard good English girls do it best." (works if you're a foreigner)
 - "I'm [nationality] but I have a big personality." (ADHD angle — claims girls with self-diagnosed ADHD respond strongly)
 - "Milan for a week" — creates a time-pressure novelty frame ("get this guy before he leaves")
 - "Accepting tattoo tours" — targets alt/rave girls
 - "Passenger princess" — broad appeal; he uses it as an opening line too ("You look like the ideal passenger princess")
- Tone guidance: pick whichever fits your personality; don't use all of them
- During the live build he uses: "I can make it for the other [guy] that inches later, making it 6 ft." — adds cocky/arrogant douchebag energy he says is attractive
 - "My worst midnight snack habit, you." — low-effort, arrogant, fuckboy personality closer

Prompt Templates 9:16

- Purpose: get girls to message YOU first; useful if you don't know what to say
- Prompt list:
 - "Post a date to me" — uses your accent/novelty as the hook
 - "People describe me as golden retriever" — broad female appeal for a fun/warm personality image
 - "If I had 20 minutes to live, I would wait 20 minutes" — casual, low-effort, sarcastic tone

- "I can beat you in a game of saying 'you're right'" — plays on the stereotype that women never admit they're wrong
- "Tell me how much you hate men" — targets feminist/anti-men crowd with irony
- "I'm not like the other guys, I'm worse" — sarcastic love-bombing joke
- "Book a holiday for the afterlife" — appeals to girls who love travel
- "I'll plan to take care of everything" — sells a provider/daddy fantasy
- "Making minute rice in 58 seconds" — absurdist joke prompt
- Bonus prompt (his personal golden gem): "The way to a me over is one wish wallow"
 - Reference to the movie Obsession — a film where a girl becomes obsessed with a guy through a supernatural wish
 - He learned about the movie from a girl he was seeing and turned it into a prompt
 - Girls respond with "I used my one wish wallow for you" — strong engagement driver
 - He admits he's never watched the movie

Live Account Build (Late-30s Man) 10:45

- Building a profile live for a client who is in his late 30s
- Photo lineup (all AI-generated):
 - Shirtless on a boat, looking away — effortless/candid lead photo
 - Action shot looking toward camera
 - Gun range — "high testosterone hobby, gets girls wet"
 - Boating lifestyle shot
 - Restaurant shot — status booster
 - Shirtless walking out of a pool
- Age deception strategy:
 - Real age: late 30s
 - Profile DOB set to 01/01/1998 — makes him appear ~28 years old
 - Use Tinder Gold Plus to hide age from profile so no one can see the listed age
 - Claims this lets him match younger women without them knowing he lied
- Profile settings used:
 - Gender: Man | Interested in: Women
 - Relationship intent: "Still figuring it out" (he sometimes uses "Long-term, open to short" as girls are catching on)
 - Interests selected: gym, travel, spa, Netflix, cocktails
 - Sexual orientation: skipped
- Key technical steps:
 - Photo verify your face (do NOT do the ID verification — "don't let them keep your ID")
 - Verify your email

- Turn off Smart Photos (Tinder's auto-ordering algorithm)
- Left swipe freely, photo verify, and leave it
- Prompts used on the live build:
 - "People describe me as golden retriever"
 - "The way to a me over is one wish wallow"
 - "My worst midnight snack habit, you"

Building a late-30s man's profile with entirely AI-generated photos, a fake younger age, and hidden age via Tinder Gold produced active matches and conversations within 24 hours.

Results 13:43

- The live-built account showed active chats within the video's filming window
- Other client results cited:
 - A 5-ft-3 Asian man: 1,400 likes
 - An overweight man: 99+ likes
- His framing: height, ethnicity, and body type are not excuses — the formula overrides them
- Call to action: watch his other transformation videos on his channel for more proof cases