The hiring framework I use for my business

Channel: Tim Luong · Published: Oct 16, 2026 · Watch: https://www.youtube.com/shorts/o25oZsZCITw Source: full transcript

📋 Executive Summary

Tim Luong shares a concise four-step hiring framework: find your core business constraint, identify the right role to solve it, define measurable success criteria, then hire someone with proven results doing exactly that.

📑 Contents

- 🔍 Step 1: Identify Your Biggest Constraint
- 🤖 Step 2: Find the Right Role
- 📊 Step 3: Define the Scorecard
- ✅ Step 4: Hire Proven People Only

🔍 Step 1: Identify Your Biggest Constraint 0:00

- Start by asking: what is the single biggest constraint in your business right now?
  - Reframe the question: what is the one thing, if solved, that could allow your business to double?
  - This forces prioritization — you are not hiring generically, you are hiring to remove a specific bottleneck
- Write the constraint down explicitly before doing anything else
  - The act of writing it clarifies exactly what you need

🤖 Step 2: Find the Right Role 0:08

- Take the written constraint and bring it to ChatGPT
  - Ask: