What to do at 100k a month

Channel: Tim Luong · Published: Nov 08, 2026 · Watch: https://www.youtube.com/shorts/8BnTDlogvyI Source: full transcript

📋 Executive Summary

Reaching $100k/month is a trap if you've only built a high-paying job for yourself. The fix: delegate carefully, go deeper (not wider), and audit whether your marketing and offer can truly scale 3×.

📑 Contents

- 🚨 The $100k/Month Trap
- 🛑 The Delegation Warning
- 🎯 Depth Over Diversification
- 📣 Tripling Your Marketing Output
- 📦 Scaling Your Offer and Product

🚨 The $100k/Month Trap 0:00

- Entrepreneurs hitting $100k/month unknowingly create a very high-paying job — not a business
  - They solve problems and generate revenue, but the entire process stops the moment they stop working
  - The business is entirely dependent on the founder's personal output
- The critical diagnostic question to ask yourself at this stage:
  - "Can someone else now produce what I am producing, in the same way?"
    - If the answer is no, you have a job, not a scalable business

🛑 The Delegation Warning 0:00

- Do NOT delegate tasks you don't understand well enough to verify
  - If you lack the knowledge to audit the quality of the work, you cannot delegate it responsibly
  - Delegating blindly at this stage leads to quality collapse and wasted resources

🎯 Depth Over Diversification 0:00

- At the $100k/month stage, going deeper in one area is generally more effective than diversifying
  - Resist the temptation to add new channels, offers, or revenue streams prematurely
  - Master and scale what is already working before expanding horizontally

📣 Tripling Your Marketing Output 0:23

- The core question: how do you spend or produce 3× more in your existing marketing channel?
- If you are running paid ads:
  - Find ways to triple your ad spend and the volume of ads or content you produce weekly or monthly
- If you are running organic content:
  - Option 1 — Triple your view count by improving content quality so it attracts more of the right people
  - Option 2 — Triple the volume of content you are publishing
  - Option 3 — Improve the quality of existing content so it reaches more viewers and generates more qualified interest in your product
- The goal across all channels: get the right people learning about your product at a much higher rate

📦 Scaling Your Offer and Product 0:48

- After marketing, audit your product or service itself:
  - Can it handle 3× the number of customers without breaking down?
  - If your customer base doubled, would delivery and quality hold up?
  - If it tripled, would everything fall apart and service quality collapse?
- If the offer is not scalable, it must be restructured before you try to grow further
  - This may mean redesigning your product, service delivery model, or fulfillment process to make it genuinely scalable

> The bottleneck at $100k/month is almost never marketing — it's whether your offer and operations can survive the growth you're trying to create.