

I can't be around fake feminine men it makes me sick

Channel: Onem · Published: Jun 25, 2026 · Watch: <https://www.youtube.com/shorts/GPdeSSzFgT4> Source: full transcript

Executive Summary

The host uses anecdotes from his paid ON members club in Bali to argue that his paying members are an elite "1%" of disciplined, brave men, while mocking the broader audience and other YouTubers as soft, broke, and fake.

Contents

-  Calling Out YouTubers and the Broader Audience
-  ON Members as the "Proper 1%"
-  The 4K Price Point as a Filter
-  Physical and Social Dominance Claims
-  "Us vs. Everyone" Mentality

Calling Out YouTubers and the Broader Audience 0:01

- The host claims launching the members club "exposed" how fake both his audience and other online creators are
 - Describes fellow YouTubers as "soft" — says he has trained with some of them and "eaten them alive"
 - Notes, with apparent amusement, that many of them use steroids
- Estimates 95% of his own audience are "full of shit" — mirrors his view that 95% of people in general are
 - Calls this "embarrassing" and says he is publicly calling them out

ON Members as the "Proper 1%" 0:23

- Trip to Bali is used as the primary evidence for member quality
 - Member named Andrew sparred toe-to-toe with a professional Muay Thai fighter
 - The pro arrived fresh; Andrew had already completed a full hour of training beforehand
 - Host describes him holding his own as "unbelievable"
 - Members routinely wake up at 4, 5, or 6 a.m.
 - Member nicknamed Sour is highlighted for relentless work ethic — described as never leaving his laptop
- Host frames ON members collectively as future mega-successes

The 4K Price Point as a Filter 1:09

- Reports roughly 200 people per day message asking to join ON
- A typical exchange he describes:
 - Prospect asks the price → told it is £4,000
 - Prospect replies they have only around £800 in their account
 - Host asks their age → answer is typically 29 years old
- He frames this as proof the majority of his audience failed to do "what they were supposed to do" with their financial lives
 - Contrasts this directly with ON members, who he says did

Physical and Social Dominance Claims 1:33

- Makes a hypothetical comparison: 20 random ON members vs. 20 random men, repeated 1,000 times
 - Claims ON members would win every time across cardio, strength, and work output
- Social confidence framed as another marker of superiority
 - Every single-member in Bali, Buddha, and Mykonos approaches women immediately upon seeing them
 - One member was rejected — he laughed it off; the group's response was simply "next one"
- Cites a statistic he finds alarming: 50% of Gen Z have never approached a woman in their life
 - Uses this as a contrast to position ON members as the "alphas"
- Goes as far as claiming he could pick a random ON member and that person would "smash" prime Andrew Tate — offered as a hyperbolic illustration of member quality

"Us vs. Everyone" Mentality 2:46

- Explicitly frames the dynamic as ON members versus the rest of the world
- Describes returning to YouTube comments as jarring after time with members — viewers feel "soft" and "gay" by comparison
- Expresses that being surrounded by his members daily feels "refreshing" and that he considers himself "blessed"
- The overall message is that the membership price and lifestyle filter out everyone who is not already in the top tier of discipline and masculinity