-  Books & Education
-  Meal Prep Service
-  TSA PreCheck & Global Entry
-  Standing Desk
-  Good Accountant
-  At Least One Nice Watch
-  Passport
-  One Nice Tailored Suit

Quality Mattress 0:00

- You spend roughly a third of your life sleeping — so the mattress is one of the highest-leverage purchases you can make
 - Poor sleep → poor decisions → inability to make money
 - Good sleep is framed as a direct prerequisite for financial and personal success

Noise-Cancelling Headphones 0:05

- Block out distractions in your environment so you can focus on work
 - Carter frames it playfully: "block out the haters"
 - Implies that your environment (people and noise) is a constant threat to productivity

Second Monitor 0:10

- Having at least one extra monitor is described as non-negotiable
 - Claim: you will be twice as productive with an additional screen
 - Carter personally runs four monitors — "My setup looks like NASA"
 - More screen real estate = less switching, more parallel workflows

Premium Gym Membership 0:23

- An expensive gym membership pays off in multiple ways beyond just fitness
 - Fewer members means less waiting for machines or weights — saves significant time
 - Networking benefit: you're surrounded by higher-net-worth individuals
 - The cost itself acts as a filter, keeping crowds small and quality high

Books & Education 0:35

- Carter gives himself an unlimited budget for books and education broadly
 - Core philosophy: "The more you know, the more you grow. The more you learn, the more you earn."
 - Framed as a competitive necessity — if you're not constantly reading and improving, you cannot keep up with the competition

Meal Prep Service 0:46

- A meal delivery/prep service that brings healthy food on demand
 - Saves time, money, and energy simultaneously
 - Practical workflow: scan the label to track macros, then get straight back to work
 - Removes decision fatigue and the time cost of cooking or sourcing food

TSA PreCheck & Global Entry 0:55

- Eliminates time wasted standing in airport security and customs lines
 - Treated as a straightforward time-arbitrage purchase — pay once, save hours repeatedly

Standing Desk 1:00

- Humans are not designed to sit for 8 hours a day
 - Carter changes the position of his desk multiple times throughout the day
 - Standing while working keeps you more alert and engaged
 - Implies it has both health and productivity benefits

Good Accountant 1:10

- Hire a good accountant before you think you need one

- The worst-case scenario: start making serious money, then get blindsided by a large IRS bill
- Proactive financial protection is framed as essential infrastructure, not a luxury

At Least One Nice Watch 1:18

- Wearing a smart watch (e.g., Apple Watch) with a suit undermines your appearance
 - Carter's quote: "If you're wearing a nice watch with your suits, you look like a gentleman. If you're wearing a smart watch with your suits, you look like a cyber bully."
 - You don't need to spend a fortune — he recommends the Tissot PRS at around $300 as a solid entry point
 - A dress watch signals professionalism and intentionality in formal settings

Passport 1:33

- Get a passport so you can travel internationally and see the world
 - Beyond lifestyle: there are real business and financial opportunities abroad
 - "It's a big world and there's a lot of opportunities abroad as well"

One Nice Tailored Suit 1:40

- Every man needs at least one well-fitted tailored suit — it doesn't have to be expensive
 - Personal story: when Carter was struggling financially, he bought a suit from a store connected to a grocery store for $100, had it tailored, and said he "looked like a million bucks"
 - Key insight: tailoring is the multiplier — a cheap suit that fits perfectly beats an expensive suit that doesn't
 - The suit + nice watch combination is the core of a polished, professional appearance
