The Dating Advice I'd Give My Son

Channel: Brandon Carter · Published: Oct 31, 2026 · Watch: https://www.youtube.com/shorts/n6V9DWbexmU Source: full transcript

📋 Executive Summary

Brandon Carter advises his son to focus on self-development across three pillars — physique, intelligence, and wealth — so that he becomes the prize women compete for, not the other way around.

📑 Contents

- 🏆 Core Philosophy: Be the Prize
- 💪 The Three Pillars of Becoming the Prize

🏆 Core Philosophy: Be the Prize 0:00

- The single most important piece of dating advice: be the prize
  - The goal is to reach a level of self-development where women compete for you, rather than you competing for women
  - This requires a deliberate, sustained investment in yourself across multiple areas

> "You have to develop yourself to the point where women compete for you, instead of you competing for them."

💪 The Three Pillars of Becoming the Prize 0:05

- Pillar 1: Physical appearance and fitness
  - Maximize your appearance and physical build
  - Maintain your overall public presence and presentation
  - The aim is to be in "amazing physical shape"
- Pillar 2: Intelligence and competence
  - Become as smart and capable as possible
  - Achieved through studying, continuous learning, and applying knowledge in real life
  - Competence is built through practical application, not just theory
- Pillar 3: Wealth
  - Earn a lot of money — framed as being "obscenely wealthy like your father"
  - Financial success is presented as a key differentiator from other men

- Combining all three pillars sets you apart from the vast majority of men
  - Carter states that if you achieve all three — elite fitness, high intelligence/competence, and significant wealth — "your situation with women will be fine"