Why Focus on Health & Wealth (Not Relationships) 0:22

- There are three areas of life: health, wealth, and relationships
 - Relationships are treated as downstream — they largely take care of themselves when health and wealth are strong
- Being unhealthy or broke makes you a burden on the people around you
 - Others have to bail you out financially or physically care for you
- Being healthy and wealthy lets you uplift the people you love
 - You can influence friends and family to get in shape
 - You can send kids to better schools, help family members, move loved ones out of bad situations
- Therefore, the 30-day focus is exclusively on health and wealth

Mindset: The Pleasure-Pain Principle 1:07

- Mindset is the foundation — without it, you won't perform the actions needed to be healthy and wealthy
- Sigmund Freud's pleasure-pain principle: every human action is motivated by either moving toward perceived pleasure or away from perceived pain
- The common mistake is relying on discipline
 - Discipline = doing what you're supposed to do whether you feel like it or not
 - Brandon calls relying solely on discipline "amateur hour"
 - The pro-level approach: change your brain so you want to do the right things
- Current broken associations most people have:
 - Pain associated with: tracking macros, working out, cardio, hard work, studying, reading
 - Pleasure associated with: social media/gooning, video games, parties, recreational drugs, chasing the opposite sex
- The goal: flip those associations so productive behaviors feel pleasurable and vices feel painful
- The tool to do this is called "self-manipulation" — specifically two lists

Self-Manipulation Tool: The List of Hate 4:13

- Create a note pinned to the top of your phone's notes app titled "List of Hate"
- What goes on the list:
 - Everyone who doubted you or said you couldn't do it
 - Everyone who did you wrong
 - Everyone who cheated on or rejected you
- Review this list every single morning to start your day
- Also look at it any time you don't feel like doing what you're supposed to do
- Why it works:
 - Provides an immediate jolt of motivation
 - Reframes inaction: not working on your goals = letting haters win and proving them right
 - If you fail after they said you'd fail, "they weren't hating — it was just an accurate assessment of your capabilities"
- Hate is neutral — like a knife, it can be used for harm or for good
 - This method transmutes negative energy into productive fuel
- Makes you invincible and resilient: every new hater just adds more fuel
 - "They killed Jesus, Abraham Lincoln, Martin Luther King — nobody gets unanimous praise"
- Quote referenced: "The best revenge is massive success" — Frank Sinatra (also attributed to Oprah)
- This replaces the need for discipline by manufacturing motivation on demand

🌟 Self-Manipulation Tool: The List of Great 7:17

- Create a second pinned note titled "List of Great"
- What goes on the list:
 - Imagine the version of yourself who has already accomplished all your goals and dreams
 - Write down every behavior that person exhibits
 - What time does he wake up?
 - Does he stay up late gaming or gooning?
 - Does he have a strict bedtime and wake-up time?
 - Is he focused and on his grind?
- How it works:
 - Every time you act in line with the list of great, you get a surge of dopamine
 - You start liking yourself more because you're becoming the man you need to be
 - You begin to enjoy productive behaviors because they feel congruent with your higher self
- Review both lists every morning and whenever you feel resistance
- Over time, your nervous system rewires:
 - Old pleasures (vices) become associated with pain
 - Old pains (hard work, gym, diet) become associated with pleasure
 - Behaviors move to autopilot — no discipline required
- You know the system is working when:
 - You need discipline to stop working, not to start
 - You need discipline to take a rest day from the gym
 - You need discipline to step off the gas and go on vacation

🥗 Diet Strategy for Getting Ripped in 30 Days 9:59

- Focus: getting as ripped as possible — not bulking (muscle gain takes much longer biologically)
- Fat can be burned "super super fast" compared to muscle gain

Metric	Formula / Target
Daily calories	Body weight (lbs) × 10
Daily protein	1 gram per pound of body weight (NOT goal body weight)
Daily water	~1 gallon
Fats & carbs	Flexible — adjust to personal preference

- Why body weight, not goal body weight for protein:
 - FDA allows food labels to be off by 20%
 - A bar listing 10g of protein might only have 8g

- Studies showing lower protein needs were done in "perfect world" conditions
- The extra protein accounts for real-world label inaccuracies
- Thermal effect of food — why protein is a "cheat code":
 - Fat digestion burns 0–3% of ingested calories
 - Carbohydrate digestion burns 5–15% of ingested calories
 - Protein digestion burns 20–30% of ingested calories
 - Eating 100 calories of protein = only absorbing 70–80 net calories
 - "Eating protein is like cash back on a credit card"
- Protein also preserves muscle during a cut
- Carb approach is personal preference: Brandon has been keto for 11 years; others can go high-carb
- Free tool: Ripped Road Map (link in description)
 - AI-powered assessment; input height, weight, age, goal, and a photo
 - Analyzes current body fat percentage, pounds of fat to lose, and exact macro targets
 - Adjustable carb/fat sliders based on preference

Movement: 20,000 Steps Per Day Breakdown 14:12

- Target: 20,000 steps per day
- At Brandon's stats (6'2", ~197 lbs), 20,000 steps burns approximately 1,000 extra calories per day
- Daily walking schedule:
 - Morning: 30-minute walk → ~3,000 steps
 - Lunch break: 30-minute walk (eat first, then walk) → ~3,000 steps
 - After work: 60-minute walk (bring spouse, kids, dog, girlfriend) → ~6,000 steps
 - Throughout workday: 10-minute walk every hour → ~8,000 steps (set an hourly alarm)
- Pace target: ~1,000 steps per 10 minutes
- Total walking time: approximately 3 hours spread across the day

Supplement & Peptide Stack 15:44

- Disclaimer repeated multiple times: consult your doctor before doing any of this
- Tirzepatide (GLP medication)
 - Kills appetite — makes it much easier to stay in a caloric deficit
 - Brandon describes it as "the closest thing to a miracle drug"
 - Analogy: dieting without a GLP = going to the library with a card catalog; dieting with one = using an iPad with AI
 - Brandon has been on it for 6+ weeks; recommended it to his mom and friend Jeremy
 - Does NOT recommend Retatrutide (Retta): can't get it legally in the US; some friends experienced their hearts racing (acts on a different receptor)

- Tesamorelin (growth hormone secretagogue)
 - Taken before sleep; stimulates natural growth hormone production
 - FDA-proven to target visceral fat (belly fat)
 - Dramatically improves sleep quality
 - Brandon reports waking up before his alarm feeling refreshed
 - Oura Ring stats: 90 minutes of deep sleep, 2 hours of REM sleep
 - Helpful during dieting because caloric deficits can cause cortisol spikes and disrupted sleep at night
- Caffeine
 - Proven to aid fat burning
 - Provides energy for 20,000 steps + weight training in a deficit
 - Brandon's current intake: up to 600 mg per day (previously up to 1 gram)
 - Notes he's been taking less recently, possibly due to better sleep from Tesamorelin
- Brandon is on all three even while at maintenance (not actively cutting), week 6–7 of use

Training Protocol 19:10

- Full body workouts, 2–4 times per week
 - Minimum: 2 sessions; 4 is likely the sweet spot
 - Adjust based on training experience and schedule
- Only compound movements — no isolation exercises
 - Examples: barbell squat, leg press, bent-over row, bench press, incline bench press, pull-ups, overhead press
- 1–2 exercises per body part
- Sets per exercise:
 - Beginners/relatively new: 2–3 sets
 - Experienced lifters: 3–4 sets
- Rest between sets: 90 seconds only
 - Brandon uses Apple Watch Ultra — raises arm, says "set 90-second timer" after each set
 - Phone stays in gym bag playing a podcast or audiobook
- Workout duration: 45–60 minutes max
- Brandon has trained this way (full body only) for 11 years
- Muscle-building note:
 - First year of training + sufficient protein + full body workouts = you CAN build muscle during this 30-day cut
 - Beyond first year: building new muscle is difficult, but you will retain existing muscle

Wealth: Starting a Service-Based Business 21:21

- Goal: start generating income within 30 days
- Why service-based, not product-based:
 - Product businesses require more overhead and startup costs
 - The only reason businesses fail is running out of money (can't cover overhead)
 - Service businesses have very low overhead — much harder to fail
- Examples of service-based businesses to consider:
 - Web design
 - Coding/app development
 - Video editing
 - Bookkeeping
 - DM setting
 - Online fitness training (how Brandon made his first million)
- Time commitment: at least 20 hours per week — before work, after work, or on weekends
- This is a side business on top of your current job

The 20-Hour Proficiency Method 22:31

- If you don't yet know enough about your chosen field:
 - Study and practice deliberately for 20 hours
 - 20 hours makes you better than the people you'll be selling to — not an expert, but proficient enough to start
- How to compress it:
 - Recommended: two 10-hour days (e.g., Saturday and Sunday) of focused study
 - Sources: courses, YouTube videos, books — whatever works
- Applies to any field: Facebook ads, web development, cybersecurity, fitness, etc.
- After 20 hours, you're ready to start making moves

The Testimonial Harvest Strategy 23:18

- After getting proficient, run a Testimonial Harvest
 - Find 5–10 people or businesses willing to let you work for them for free
 - Duration: 2 weeks to 30 days depending on the service
 - Web development: 1–2 weeks
 - Fitness coaching: at least 30 days (need time to produce meaningful results)
- Your job: get them amazing results
- In exchange for free work, you collect testimonials (screenshots, video clips, metrics)

- After the free period:
 - Offer those clients 50% off your standard rate going forward
 - Reasoning: they took a chance on you, helped you build proof, and you've already demonstrated results
 - Many of these become your first paying clients
- How to find your first free clients:
 - Tell everyone you know — friends, family, anyone in your contacts
 - Send them a personal video message
 - Post on social media / any platform with a following
 - Goal: get as many people through this as possible
- Result: within 30 days you can have paying clients and real social proof
