

Stop guessing with your content

Channel: Brandon Carter · Published: Aug 25, 2026 · Watch: <https://www.youtube.com/shorts/TjzfGNllohg8> Source: full transcript

Executive Summary

Brandon Carter outlines three video content styles — talking head, voiceover, and text-only — to help online trainers attract clients, ranked from most trust-building to easiest to produce.

Contents

-  Style 1: Talking Head
-  Style 2: Voiceover
-  Style 3: Text Only
-  Free Resource

Style 1: Talking Head 0:00

- You speak directly to the camera and give advice that helps your ideal client reach their goals
- Why it works:
 - Builds trust and rapport with the viewer
 - Makes you seem real and authentic
 - Feels less "try-hard" and more intimate

Style 2: Voiceover 0:24

- Show B-roll footage — exercises, meal prep, examples of what you do — while narrating over it without appearing on camera
- Why it works:
 - Great option for creators who are nervous about talking on camera
 - Easier to produce than a talking head video

Style 3: Text Only 0:46

- Show B-roll or relevant examples and let on-screen text do all the explaining — no speaking required
- The easiest of the three formats to make
- Why it works:
 - Tends to get more views than the other styles
 - Particularly effective for reach and bringing new people into your audience

Free Resource 0:46

- For online trainers who want to grow their following, comment the word "grow" on the video
 - Brandon will send a free guide on growing your following as an online trainer