

Trust, it works.

Channel: Tim Luong · Published: Aug 25, 2026 · Watch: <https://www.youtube.com/shorts/08NqM4SKFX0> Source: full transcript

Executive Summary

Tim Luong credits his transformation from a self-described lazy procrastinator to a multi-millionaire in his 20s entirely to one habit: always doing the task you're avoiding alongside another person.

Contents

- 🐢 The Procrastination Problem
- 💡 The Discovery: Studying with a Friend
- 💪 Applying It to Fitness
- 💼 Applying It to Business
- ✅ The Core Takeaway

The Procrastination Problem 0:00

- Tim describes himself as "the laziest [person] in high school"
- Despite setting up 5-hour study blocks at the library, he would spend the entire time scrolling social media and Facebook instead of studying
 - The time was allocated and the environment was right, but solo willpower consistently failed

The Discovery: Studying with a Friend 0:10

- Every time he went to study with a friend from the same class, he actually studied the entire time
 - The presence of another person removed the option to slack off
- He recognized this as a repeatable pattern, not a one-off coincidence

"I found out that this trick ended up working for every single aspect of my life."

Applying It to Fitness 0:28

- Goal: get in the best shape of his life during college
- Solution: found a workout partner and committed to training together
 - Hit the gym 5 days a week for 4 full years
 - Did not miss a single week across that entire period

- The partner created mutual accountability that solo motivation could never sustain

Applying It to Business 0:46

- After college, the same principle translated directly into entrepreneurship
 - Had a business partner in the early days of his business
- Current practice: whenever he needs to get work done, he hops on a Zoom call and does the work alongside another person
 - Explicitly acknowledges: "I know I'm not going to get it done on my own"
 - The virtual co-working format replicates the in-person accountability effect

The Core Takeaway 1:02

- The universal fix for procrastination: do the thing you keep putting off with somebody else present
 - Works for studying, fitness, and business — applicable to any area of life
- The mechanism is accountability — another person's presence removes the easy escape of distraction
- Actionable steps:
 - Identify the task you keep procrastinating on
 - Find one other person (friend, partner, or even a virtual co-worker on Zoom)
 - Schedule time to do that task together, not just alongside each other