

How I Text Dumb Girls on Tinder

Channel: Deni Ops · Published: Jul 22, 2026 · Watch: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=dzNJdZeSSXk> Source: full transcript

Executive Summary

Deni Ops walks through three client-managed dating app conversations, explaining openers, status plays, sexual escalation, and date-closing tactics — while consistently demeaning, mocking, and objectifying the women involved throughout.

Contents

- 🎯 Overview & Service Pitch
- 🧑 Case 1: Liv — Intrigue Opener & Reframing
- 💪 Case 2: Mia (Tinder) — Gym Opener & Sexual Escalation
- 📱 Case 2: Mia (WhatsApp) — Handling Pushback & Closing the Date
- 🧠 Case 3: Ruby — Managing Low-IQ Conversations
- 📣 Outro & Services

Overview & Service Pitch 0:00

- Video premise: breaking down "most difficult" conversations handled on client Tinder profiles
- Three girls covered: Liv, Mia, and Ruby — all described as difficult
- Service offered: full dating app account management including Tinder, Hinge, Bumble, WhatsApp/iMessage texting, Instagram setup and outsourcing
 - Claims to have grown client Instagram profiles to "a couple thousand followers within the first month"
 - Also offers physical transformation/looks consulting (linked on website)

Case 1: Liv — Intrigue Opener & Reframing 22s

- Profile read: Liv had a defined jawline and appeared to be cheek-biting in photos — used as the hook for the opener
- Opener used: "Did not know that girls knew about the cheek biting method"
 - Goal: create curiosity and banter immediately
 - Followed up by teasing her jaw structure to generate interest
- Hit a roadblock: Liv stated she is against having children
 - Original angle had been framing genetics and family/romantic life together ("selling the dream")
 - Strategy pivot: mirror her traits, act relatable — e.g. "To be honest, a mini me would be annoying"

- Then implied she has autism by mentioning "babies would have super autism" — she confirmed a self-diagnosis
- Note: presenter says most girls self-diagnose ADHD or autism
- She complained dating apps are terrible — pivoted to making fun of other guys she talks to for relatability
- She mentioned guys message her asking for sex — presenter frames this as low-status flex, says it signals she is not girlfriend material
 - Advice: ignore the status flex entirely, keep focus on the date
- Desire seeding: kept redirecting conversation back to a date; noticed her profile showed she drinks/clubs (holding whiskey bottle in photos), so cocktails were mentioned as the date activity
- Interest signal: she sent five messages in a row about drinking habits
 - Presenter's rule: five consecutive messages = extremely high interest; she cannot reclaim status after that
- She tried to backtrack with "let's see if you're worth my time" — advice: do NOT attack this, ignore it, keep date focus
- Closed by getting both Instagram and phone number
 - Used Exotic Appeal tactic: asked for her number in German because her bio listed German as a language
 - Rationale for getting both: Instagram = friends, phone = parents; described as a "double win"
 - Got her to ask for Instagram "in German" by framing it as a reward for asking nicely
- Result: date confirmed

Case 2: Mia (Tinder) — Gym Opener & Sexual Escalation 518s

- Profile read: Gym-focused profile, standard easy read
- Opener: "I found my gym wifey" — framing a cute gym couple dynamic, strong response
- Status/Foreign Appeal tactic introduced:
 - Creating novelty and exotic status is described as more powerful than looks
 - Explicit advice: lie about ethnicity or lean into dual nationality/citizenship to sound more exotic
 - Example given: presenter says he tells girls he is from the Middle East or Spain rather than identifying his actual background
 - Justification: "These girls are dumb. They don't know."
 - Claims to have "stolen girls from better-looking guys" using novelty appeal alone
- Framed traveling together and "taking her back with us" — she responded enthusiastically ("Oh please do")
- Sexual escalation sequence:
 - Step 1: Sell Disney princess fantasy — traveling together, exotic destination
 - Step 2: Suitcase/lap joke — offered two options (fit in suitcase or sit on lap), forcing her to choose the lap
 - Step 3: Called her a "good girl," promised a reward — she complied, confirming submissive framing

- Step 4: Introduced distraction framing — told her he'd get distracted with her on his lap rather than being blunt about sex
 - Rationale: slow, indirect, "forbidden" framing creates more arousal than direct requests
- Step 5: Escalated to grinding discussion — kept it indirect ("especially if you start grinding")
- She gave Instagram, Snapchat, and number proactively — presenter calls this proof of momentum

Case 2: Mia (WhatsApp) — Handling Pushback & Closing the Date 814s

- Notes that most guys get flaked on after getting a number — WhatsApp is where "the difficult side comes out"
- Post-Tinder opener: "What am I saving your contact as?" — she replied "wife"
 - Response: save her as "potential wifey for now" to make her work for it
- She pushed back: "Number won't be saved until I know it's worth saving"
 - Tactic: call out the attitude but soften the blow by saying you'll convince her regardless
- Sunbed banter sequence:
 - She looked tanned; guessed she was not white; she turned out to be a white girl
 - Told her he was disappointed her tan was fake and their babies wouldn't be tanned (exotic appeal angle)
 - She became defensive about sunbeds — presenter frames defensiveness as insecurity
 - She called him a "weirdo" but also said he was "really cute" — presenter attributes this to the Instagram profile setup and improved looks
 - Advice: when she gives an inch, take a mile — be arrogant — but warns not to push too far or she'll leave
- She demanded a date be set: "You better set a date" — presenter calls this maximum interest signal
 - She said she was "pretty free, only goes to the gym" — framed back to gym couple fantasy
 - Date confirmed for the following day
- Date logistics framing:
 - Mentioned cocktails and a dress code to imply an exotic venue
 - Used "I hope you're a good passenger princess" to reinforce dominant/daddy frame and establish he has a car
 - She revealed a past trauma about being driven recklessly on a date — responded with comfort/protection framing: "I'm not a shitty driver, won't put your life in danger"
 - Steered conversation to music/CarPlay playlist — rationale: gives her something to bring up on the date herself, creating a natural flirt opportunity in person
- Date confirmed and locked in

Case 3: Ruby — Managing Low-IQ Conversations 1425s

- Described as having a bio that "made his brain hurt"; framed throughout as having very low intelligence

- Core advice for low-IQ girls: keep messages extremely simple, lead all conversation, do not over-explain
 - "Talk to them like they're a beast" — use short, direct, brainless-to-reply-to messages
 - If a dumb girl keeps replying despite bad replies, it means she's interested, not disinterested
- Opener: "You're my gym wife now, Ruby" — she replied "Am I?" which was treated as sufficient engagement
- Progressed: "Are you not wifey?" → "I'm sure you're pro on a date" → she replied "probably yes"
- Topic switch to meeting his mother — used to test if she can hold any conversation at all
 - She struggled; presenter advises men to just lead and be the smarter person
- Mentioned cocktails; she double-texted saying "of course, silly question" — treated as high interest
 - She asked where he was from — framed as a positive interest signal
- Foreign appeal used: said client was from Austria
 - She confused Austria with Australia — presenter reacted with frustration but played it off with a joke
 - Referenced a "famous Austrian painter" (implied Hitler, said he won't name him on YouTube)
 - Introduced Aryan babies joke for sexual ascension — acknowledged it was risky and possibly too complicated for her
- She tried to give Instagram handle; presenter wanted phone number instead
 - Tactic used: "No number, no date" — stated plainly and directly
 - She complied and sent the number
- Key takeaway stated: with low-IQ girls, state facts plainly, hold status, lead, and do not give up frame
- Result: date confirmed; presenter jokes about checking on client's mental health after the conversation

Outro & Services 1985s

- Plugs another video: "how I smashed three girls on Tinder from my own messages and profile" — described as higher-interest girls
- Services offered:
 - Full texting/conversation management for clients
 - Dating profile setup: Tinder, Hinge, Bumble, Instagram, WhatsApp/iMessage
 - Text message review
 - Instagram outsourcing and profile building
 - Physical transformation/looks consulting (details on website)
- Contact method: WhatsApp (linked in description)