Ranking Snacks for Fat Loss (Granola Got Cooked)

Channel: Brandon Carter · Published: Oct 23, 2026 · Watch: https://www.youtube.com/shorts/BypgJua9BFQ Source: full transcript

📋 Executive Summary

Brandon Carter rapidly ranks popular snacks on a tier list based on protein content, calorie quality, and satiety — crowning hard-boiled eggs and plain Greek yogurt as S-tier while roasting granola, rice cakes, and trail mix.

📑 Contents

- 🐹 Granola — F Tier
- 🍚 Rice Cakes — F Tier
- 🥚 Hard-Boiled Eggs — S Tier
- 🍫 Protein Bars — C Tier
- 🥩 Beef Jerky — A Tier
- 🥛 Greek Yogurt — F Tier or S Tier
- 🍫 Dark Chocolate — B Tier
- 🌰 Trail Mix — D Tier

🐹 Granola — F Tier 0:00

- Rated F tier immediately, no hesitation
  - Described as looking like "gerbil food" — something you'd feed a hamster or small critter
  - Brandon frames himself as a "big mammal, top of the food chain" — not interested in eating a bag of crumbs
  - Verdict: "It's garbage."

🍚 Rice Cakes — F Tier 0:00

- Also rated F tier
  - Core problem: essentially empty calories with no protein
  - Does not promote satiety — "doesn't get you full"
  - Nothing redeemable mentioned for fat loss purposes

🥚 Hard-Boiled Eggs — S Tier 0:22

- Rated S tier — the top ranking in the video
  - Relatively cheap compared to other high-protein snacks

- 6 g of protein per egg
- Brandon personally eats between 9 and 12 eggs per day
- Pre-empts the cholesterol concern: states his cholesterol is perfect, verified through regular blood work

🍫 Protein Bars — C Tier 0:22

- Rated C tier — mediocre, not recommended as a go-to
  - Many are essentially "candy with some protein in" — not meaningfully different from junk food
  - Some carry a "ridiculous amount of calories" that undermine fat loss goals
  - Implied: quality varies widely, so most fall short

🥩 Beef Jerky — A Tier 0:45

- Rated A tier — high praise, just below S
  - Brandon's personal go-to snack while traveling through airports
  - Takes approximately 50 flights per year, so he consumes a lot of jerky in practice
  - Key caveat: avoid varieties with high sugar content — "then it's just like candy meat"
  - Look for plain or low-sugar jerky to keep it a legitimate fat-loss snack

🥛 Greek Yogurt — F Tier or S Tier 0:45

- Rating is conditional — F tier or S tier depending on the product
  - Most commercial Greek yogurt = F tier because manufacturers load it with sugar and fruit
  - Plain Greek yogurt (no added sugar) = S tier — earns the top ranking
  - Takeaway: always check the label; the default flavored versions defeat the purpose

🍫 Dark Chocolate — B Tier 1:06

- Rated B tier — solid but not elite
  - Contains tons of antioxidants — a genuine health benefit
  - The right brand keeps sugar content low, making it a reasonable treat
  - Implied: brand selection matters; not all dark chocolate qualifies

🌰 Trail Mix — D Tier 1:06

- Rated D tier — near the bottom
  - "Unless you are a small child on a field trip, you ain't got no reason to be eating trail mix, man."
  - Punchline: "You ain't on no trail" — mocks the idea that it's a practical adult snack for fat loss
  - Implied issues: high calorie density, typically loaded with dried fruit and sugar, poor protein-to-calorie ratio