Spending 70k a month really doesn't change much

Channel: Tim Luong · Published: Oct 24, 2026 · Watch: https://www.youtube.com/shorts/YaeE0Pp0c6A Source: full transcript

📋 Executive Summary

At age 26, Tim Luong was unknowingly spending $70,000/month in Miami. A single check-in with his accountant revealed the waste, and he cut his spending by more than half — illustrating that you cannot control what you do not measure.

📑 Contents

- 🎉 The $70K/Month Lifestyle
- 💡 The Wake-Up Call
- 📏 The Core Principle: Measure to Control

🎉 The $70K/Month Lifestyle 0:00

- Tim was 26 years old and living in Miami in 2021
  - Income came from two sources: crypto gains and a business that was performing well
  - Being a young, wealthy person in Miami led to carefree, high-spending behavior
- Spending habits during this period:
  - Spending heavily at nightclub tables every weekend
  - Dining at upscale restaurants approximately 3–4 times per week
    - Specifically mentions Carbone as an example of the caliber of restaurants visited
  - Had zero concern or awareness about what he was spending at the time

💡 The Wake-Up Call 0:20

- One day, Tim decided to message his accountant to ask how much he had spent over the past few months
  - The answer: $70,000 per month
  - His immediate reaction: "Okay, this needs to stop now."
- Upon reviewing the breakdown of expenses, he realized:
  - At least half of the things he was spending on had no meaningful impact on his happiness
  - Much of the spending did not improve his quality of life in any measurable way
- He then sat down with his accountant and set clear spending rules
  - Result: cut his monthly expenses by more than half

📏 The Core Principle: Measure to Control 0:41

> "You cannot manage what you cannot measure." - If you don't track your income and expenses, you have no basis for knowing whether your spending is appropriate - Practical takeaway, especially for those new to business: - Track every single penny of expenditure - Regularly monitor both income and expenses so you always have a clear picture - This visibility is what makes controlling spending possible