

A Boring Website Makes Me $1M/Month. Here's How

Channel: Tim Luong · Published: Jun 24, 2026 · Watch: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=LXENYcrPx_w Source: full transcript

Executive Summary

After 10 years building landing pages across real estate, B2B, SaaS, and coaching — generating hundreds of millions combined — Tim Luong reveals the four-part page formula, the fifth principle of congruency most people miss, and the post-opt-in filtering system that separates funnels that scale from ones that leak money.

Contents

-  Warm vs. Cold Traffic: The Split You Must Understand First
-  Principle 1: The Headline
-  Principle 2: The Sub-Headline
-  Principle 3: Proof
-  Principle 4: The Call to Action (CTA)
-  Principle 5: Congruency — The Hidden Variable
-  Beyond the Landing Page: The Application & Routing System

Warm vs. Cold Traffic: The Split You Must Understand First 0:23

- There are two fundamentally different audiences hitting any landing page
 - Warm/organic traffic — people who already know you, trust you, have watched your content over weeks
 - You can get away with a significantly worse landing page and they will still opt in
 - Cold/paid traffic — people who have never seen you before and do not trust you
 - You have roughly 5 seconds to convince them to trust you enough to give their name or take the required action before they leave
- The critical mistake: building one page for both audiences
 - If you don't separate them, your cold-traffic conversion will stay poor and you'll wrongly blame your ads
- This distinction also explains why congruency (Principle 5) requires separate pages for each audience type

Principle 1: The Headline 1:33

- The headline does 80% of the work on the entire page
 - It is the very first thing read; it decides whether someone reads on or hits the back button
 - If it doesn't stop them, nothing else on the page will matter

- Most founders treat the headline like a label (e.g.,