Executive Summary

Brandon Carter lays out a three-rule 90-day system to get lean and earn more: track calories with AI, spend 4 focused hours a day on your single most important task, and live out of Google Calendar to kill wasted time.

Detailed Breakdown

- Rule 1 - Track everything that matters

Fat loss is pure math: 1 lb of fat = 3,500 calories

- A 500 cal/day deficit loses 1 lb/week
- Example: a 200 lb person targets 2,000 cal/day and 200 g protein
- Track calories burned with a wearable (Oura Ring, Apple Watch, Whoop)
- Track intake with Claude AI: photo or type your meals; it reads Apple Health for real-time deficit

Biggest mistake people make: confusing motion with progress - eating "healthy" without tracking.

- Rule 2 - Work only on the One Thing

- The single task that makes everything else easier or unnecessary
- Brandon's was creating content
- Studying and reading do not count - only doing

- Rule 3 - Live out of your calendar

- Block recurring tasks first: sleep, work, gym, commute, family
- Then fill 28 hrs/week of deep work to average 4 hrs/day
- Leave zero white space

Worth Noting

- Duke University study: tracking alone (no diet plan) lost 5 lbs in 3 months
