

From NYC to Saint Tropez

Channel: Tim Luong · Published: Aug 26, 2026 · Watch: <https://www.youtube.com/shorts/J3OJ-kNk1L8> Source: full transcript

Executive Summary

A brief, high-energy travel short in which the creator leaves New York City bound for Saint Tropez, punctuated by music and a playful rap interlude — very little spoken detail is provided.

Contents

-  Departure Energy & Opening Moment
-  Music & Rap Interlude

Departure Energy & Opening Moment 0:03

- The video opens with an urgent, excited declaration: "We got to get out of here."
 - The phrase is repeated, suggesting a spontaneous or eagerly anticipated departure from NYC.
- No additional travel logistics, locations, or context are provided in the transcript beyond the title's implication of a NYC → Saint Tropez journey.

Music & Rap Interlude 0:03

- A music break plays, transitioning the short into an upbeat tone.
- A rap snippet plays over the music with the following lyrics:
 - "Yo. I'm coming your way. I'm right in your face with something to say."
 - "I know that you ball. I know that you play like girls in the WNBA."
- The interlude appears to serve as hype/intro energy rather than conveying travel-specific information.
- The short ends with the word "play," cutting off abruptly — consistent with the fast-paced Shorts format.