

Life is not just about money.

Channel: Tim Luong · Published: Aug 28, 2026 · Watch: https://www.youtube.com/shorts/hqT6w_UUsYU Source: full transcript

Executive Summary

Tim Luong shares how running a $300k/month business at 25 left him physically and emotionally broken, arguing that money without health, friends, and balance leads to long-term regret.

Contents

-  The $300k/Month Wake-Up Call
-  The Cost of Chasing Only Money

The $300k/Month Wake-Up Call 0:00

- At age 25, Tim was running a business generating $300,000 per month
 - Despite this financial success, he describes himself as "completely miserable"
 - Physical symptoms of stress:
 - Gained significant weight (describes himself as "fat")
 - Hair was falling out
 - Couldn't sleep through the night
 - This experience forced a realization: there is more to life than "the game of money"

The Cost of Chasing Only Money 0:23

- Having money means little if other life areas are neglected
 - Being overweight and unhappy cancels out financial wins
 - Lacking friends you genuinely enjoy spending time with
 - Having no meaningful social life
 - Working 7 days a week with no rest or balance
- The long-term consequence: waking up in 10, 20, or 30 years filled with regret

The core warning: optimizing purely for income while ignoring health, relationships, and rest is a path to a life you'll eventually wish you'd lived differently.