The Reverse-Engineering Formula 0:00

- Brandon's credibility context: made his first million as an online trainer and has taught over 15,000 people how to build a successful online fitness business.
- The core idea: stop guessing — use math to work backwards from your income goal to a daily task.
- The formula (each step its own calculation):
 - Step 1 — Divide your monthly revenue goal by the price of your coaching program → gives you sales needed per month.
 - Example anchor: $$20,000 \text{ goal} \div \text{program price} = # \text{ of sales/month}$
 - Step 2 — Divide sales needed by a 30% close rate → gives you calls needed per month.
 - Assumes roughly 1 in 3 calls converts to a sale.
 - Step 3 — Divide calls per month by 4 → gives you calls needed per week.
 - Step 4 — Divide calls per week by 7 → gives you calls needed per day.
 - Step 5 — Divide calls per day by a 5% outreach-to-book-call ratio → gives you DMs to send per day.
 - Assumes roughly 1 in 20 DMs results in a booked discovery call.
- End result: a single daily number (DMs to send) that, if hit consistently, mathematically produces $20K/month.

The entire business reduces to one daily action: send enough DMs every day and the revenue follows automatically from the math.
