4 Prompts, 4 Completely Different Reels

Channel: Brandon Carter · Published: Nov 07, 2026 · Watch: https://www.youtube.com/shorts/8TVPJRXZv5Y Source: description only

📋 Executive Summary

Brandon Carter shows how prompting Claude with four distinct ideas generates four visually unique Reels formats — no manual timeline, keyframes, or traditional editing required.

📑 Contents

- 🔥 Reel 1: The Burning Question Card
- 📊 Reel 2: The Real Views Chart
- 📅 Reel 3: Day in the Life
- 🖼️ Reel 4: Floating Photo Panels
- ⚙️ Key Takeaway: No Timeline, No Keyframes

🔥 Reel 1: The Burning Question Card

- A question card visual that catches fire
  - Generated entirely from a single text prompt to Claude
  - Represents a dramatic, attention-grabbing opener format for Reels

📊 Reel 2: The Real Views Chart

- A chart displaying Brandon's actual views data
  - Uses a data-visualization style format within the Reel
  - Framed as "real" metrics, suggesting an authentic/transparency angle

📅 Reel 3: Day in the Life

- A "day in the life" style Reel format
  - Classic content format reimagined through AI-generated structure
  - No manual sequencing or timeline editing involved

🖼️ Reel 4: Floating Photo Panels

- Photo panels displayed above the creator's head
  - Visually distinctive layout placing images spatially around the subject

- Demonstrates Claude's ability to generate unconventional compositional ideas

⚙️ Key Takeaway: No Timeline, No Keyframes

- All four Reels were produced without a traditional video editing workflow
  - No timeline manipulation
  - No keyframe animation
  - Each unique format came purely from a different text prompt fed into Claude

> The core insight: prompt variation alone — not editing skill — drives format diversity when using AI tools like Claude for short-form video ideation.