Stop being nonchalant #businessgrowth #motivation #sucessjourney #successboost #mindset #grgelav

Channel: Greg Lav · Published: Nov 07, 2026 · Watch: https://www.youtube.com/shorts/RWi1CqxTUPU Source: full transcript

📋 Executive Summary

Greg Lav calls out new entrepreneurs who act too cool to market themselves. If you're risking everything on a business but too proud to post daily or use bold tactics, stay home.

📑 Contents

- 🚨 Warning Sign: Acting Too Cool
- 📣 The Daily Marketing Mindset

🚨 Warning Sign: Acting Too Cool 0:00

- The number one red flag for beginner entrepreneurs is trying to appear too cool or nonchalant
  - Greg directly calls this out: "Stop being nonchalant"
  - You are literally risking your life — your livelihood, time, and resources — on entrepreneurship
    - Yet you act too proud to do basic, visible marketing?
- Example of "too cool" behavior:
  - Refusing to post stories or content about your own business
  - Being too proud to put branded pink trucks driving through the streets to promote your brand
    - This is used as a vivid, slightly outrageous example of bold, unapologetic marketing most people would shy away from out of ego

📣 The Daily Marketing Mindset 0:14

- Greg uses a concrete hypothetical: a crispy apple product launched a year ago
  - If you think you're too cool to post about it every single day — "stay home"
  - Greg's stance: he will post about that product every day without hesitation or embarrassment

    > "I'm not too good to do that." — Greg Lav
- Core takeaway: ego and the desire to seem effortlessly cool are enemies of business growth
  - Consistent, relentless, even repetitive promotion is not beneath you — it IS the job
  - If you're unwilling to do it, someone else (like Greg) will, and they will out-compete you