God, I'm Scared To Bet On Myself (His Answer)

Channel: Brandon Carter · Published: Oct 11, 2026 · Watch: https://www.youtube.com/shorts/miRbVZcD_JA Source: description only

📋 Executive Summary

A short, faith-driven motivational message using three Bible verses to reassure entrepreneurs and creators that fear of betting on yourself is real — but scripture provides a direct answer.

📑 Contents

- 🙏 The Prayer and the Premise
- 📖 Three Bible Verses as the Answer
- 💡 The Core Message and Call to Action

🙏 The Prayer and the Premise

- The video opens with a relatable, vulnerable statement framed as a prayer: "God, I'm scared to bet on myself."
  - This positions fear of self-investment as something honest and worth bringing to faith, not something to be ashamed of.
- The premise is that scripture itself is the answer to that fear — described as appearing "on every page of this video."

📖 Three Bible Verses as the Answer

- Isaiah 43:1 — "Don't be afraid, for I have redeemed you."
  - Frames courage as rooted in identity and divine redemption, not personal ability alone.
- Mark 5:36 — "Don't be afraid, only believe."
  - A direct, minimal command — belief is presented as the single required response to fear.
- Acts 18:9 — "Don't be afraid, but speak and don't be silent."
  - Specifically addresses the fear of putting yourself out there publicly — speaking, creating, showing up.
    - Particularly relevant to online coaches, trainers, and entrepreneurs who must market themselves.

💡 The Core Message and Call to Action

- The central argument: your gifts were given to be used, not hidden behind the security of a conventional job.

    - "You were given gifts to use them, not to hide them behind a safe job."
- The video targets online coaches, personal trainers, and entrepreneurs facing the leap of self-employment or public visibility.
- Viewers are invited to share their own go-to scripture in the comments: "Drop the verse that gets you through the scary seasons."
    - This creates community engagement around shared faith and entrepreneurial struggle.