

Channel: Tim Luong · Published: Aug 31, 2026 · Watch: https://www.youtube.com/shorts/_YGrffgUGsI Source: full transcript

Executive Summary

A brief comedy short riffing on "yellow fever" and ABG (Asian Baby Girl) culture, using the iconic Tokyo Drift song as a punchline whenever an attractive Asian woman walks by.

Contents

- 🎬 The Skit

The Skit 0:00

- The premise is "yellow fever" — slang for attraction to Asian women — used as the setup for the joke
 - One person notes that you know a woman is attractive "when she's walking up to you and you hear the Tokyo Drift song"
 - The Tokyo Drift soundtrack plays as a comedic audio cue, mimicking the sound of a car drifting
- The term ABG (Asian Baby Girl) is used twice as a label for the woman approaching
 - The joke escalates with the drift sound effect playing again for emphasis
- Ends with the reactions: "Oh.", "Shawty Asian.", and "Damn it." — conveying exaggerated, helpless attraction