

Owed it all to greens before beverage

#businessgrowth #motivation #sucessjourney

#mindset

Channel: Greg Lav · Published: Oct 06, 2026 · Watch: <https://www.youtube.com/shorts/SovSMDcDiE4> Source: full transcript

Executive Summary

Bloom was built as a self-funded greens powder company reaching $180M in revenue before pivoting to energy drinks — a move that exploded household penetration from 1.4% to 14.8% in roughly two years.

Contents

-  The Greens-First Origin Story
-  The Household Penetration Breakthrough
-  The Beverage Pivot and Brand Transformation

The Greens-First Origin Story 0:00

- The license plate on Greg's car reads "GREENS" — a direct nod to how the company was built
- Bloom was bootstrapped (self-funded) from the ground up
 - Grew entirely through greens powder with no outside investment mentioned
 - Reached $180 million in revenue as a greens-only brand
- The company's entire identity, up until recently, was vegetables/greens

The Household Penetration Breakthrough 0:10

- As of 2024, Bloom had a household penetration rate of 1.4%
 - Meaning roughly 1 in every 100 American homes had purchased a Bloom product at least once
 - This was the ceiling achieved after years of building the greens business
- Penetration then jumped to 14.8% following the beverage expansion
 - A more than 10x increase in the share of U.S. households reached

The Beverage Pivot and Brand Transformation 0:22

- Today, 14 out of every 15 people who know Bloom associate it with energy drinks, not greens
- The greens powder origin is now largely invisible to the general consumer

- "We were a greens company just two years ago"
- The core takeaway is how rapidly a brand's identity and market reach can shift

"This is how fast your life can change." — Greg Lav, underscoring the speed of the brand's transformation within just two years.