

I Helped a CHUD F**k girls on TINDER...

Channel: Deni Ops · Published: Jul 08, 2026 · Watch: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=HSdBguCdFu0> Source: full transcript

Executive Summary

Deni Ops documents a 3-month dating-app transformation of "James," a 5'7", overweight, 27-year-old chemist, using AI-generated photos, strategic profile optimization, polarizing prompts, and a scripted texting playbook to go from near-zero matches to 181+ likes and real-world hookups.

Contents

-  Who Is James?
-  Diagnosing James's Original Pictures
-  The Profile Makeover: AI Photos & Strategy
-  Profile Setup: Bio, Prompts & Settings
-  Texting Strategy & Live Messaging Breakdowns
-  Post-Dating-App Phase & Real-World Results
-  Final Results & Broader Client Benchmarks

Who Is James? 0:44

- 27-year-old male, 5'7", overweight/unhealthy body composition
- Occupation: chemist and business owner
- Lifestyle: independent, owns a house, car, and a dog; surfer; gamer; works out on and off for a decade
- Dating history:
  - Had a girlfriend for 1.5 years (on-and-off relationship)
  - A few hookups — girls were always the initiators, not him
  - Goal: build a consistent rotation and get hookups himself, not rely on women approaching him
- Mental state before coaching:
  - Almost on the verge of giving up on dating and life entirely
  - His roommate was successfully getting girls while he couldn't — described as a "pretty crazy situation"
- Why the coach shares this: to illustrate that an average, struggling guy can get results

Diagnosing James's Original Pictures 3:00

- Picture 1 — Plain mirror selfie
  - Posing was acceptable: no "nerd neck," straight back, shoulders down and back

- He was clean-shaven — noted as important for appeal
- Fatal flaws:
  - Cluttered, messy background — signals poor self-management to women
  - Dirty mirror compounds the negative impression
  - Too generic; no unique or high-appeal elements
- Verdict: only works if the man is exceptionally good-looking; even a Versace model client with a similarly weak photo only got 40–50 likes in 2 weeks before his account died
- Picture 2 — Candid lifestyle/dog shot
  - Positive: casual, effortless lifestyle feel; shows day-to-day life
  - Fatal flaws:
    - Dog occupies more frame space than James — makes him look low-status next to his own pet
    - His arm is hanging out of frame; proportions are off (grid tool not used)
    - Jacket described as unflattering
  - Verdict: feels like "mom took this picture" energy; dog photos are overused and clichéd on dating apps
- Picture 3 — Niche event photo (with someone named "Nadwa")
  - Positives: decent posing, centered in frame, good outfit (nice jeans, shoes)
  - Looks reasonably fit in this shot
  - Fatal flaws:
    - Niche subject matter alienates girls unfamiliar with it
    - Meeting/standing next to an idol or admired figure makes James look lower-status than the other person — "mugged twice: once by the dog, once by Nadwa"
    - Fan-energy photos belong on Instagram, not Tinder
  - Verdict: creative concept but wrong platform; conveys low status

The Profile Makeover: AI Photos & Strategy 6:53

---

- All six photos were AI-generated using what the coach calls their "old system of AI" — described as hyperrealistic
- Core strategic principle: avoid catfishing too hard; keep his appearance close to reality so he isn't "slapped on the date" — slightly enhanced, not fabricated
- Photo 1 — Dressed-up portrait
  - Nice lighting, shirt with top buttons undone (projects sexual appeal)
  - Tasteful jewelry (signals high status)
  - Non-try-hard expression (slight smile, not forced)
  - Rationale: shows the girl what she'll see when she meets him dressed up — selling the date experience
- Photo 2 — Dark/alt aesthetic night shot
  - Black clothing, long hair, dark environment, side-of-road location

- Designed specifically to attract alt girls — described as "brilliant" for that niche
- Polarizing elements intentional: edgy vibe drives targeted interest
- Photo 3 — Lifestyle/physique replacement shot
  - Used in place of a standard shirtless photo
  - Shows some muscle definition and lifestyle aesthetic without full shirtless reveal
  - Designed to make women want to be part of his life
- Photo 4 — Slightly enhanced shirtless
  - Kept very close to his real physique — "slightly enhanced" to look toned, not fabricated six-pack
  - Candid style, looking off into the distance
  - Placed in the middle of the profile order intentionally — not as the lead photo
  - Rationale: a girl who already likes him from earlier photos will interpret this as a "dad bod," which is acceptable and still generates likes
- Photo 5 — City/coffee date environment
  - Highlights outfit and urban location
  - Goal: show realism — what a date with him would look like (getting coffee in the city)
- Photo 6 — Cocktail bar candid
  - Looking through a drinks menu at a bar
  - Romanticizes him; sells the date experience
  - Tip tied to this photo: memorize the bar menu before a date so you can tell the server "we don't need that, I already know what we're ordering" — projects masculine confidence
- Photo placement strategy: shirtless photo placed mid-profile, not first, because he's not in peak shape; lead with the most attractive dressed photos

Profile Setup: Bio, Prompts & Settings 11:10

---

- Smart Photos: turned OFF — described as basic common sense
- Bio: "Looking for my surfer princess" — leans into his surfing identity as a strength
- Height: 5'7" deliberately omitted — "don't list things that aren't assets"
- "Looking for" field: set to "Still figuring it out"
  - Rationale: "Short-term fun" repels girls wanting something casual because it signals player energy upfront; "Long-term" repels girls who don't want a relationship — "still figuring it out" keeps both audiences open and generates curiosity
- Love language: set to "Touch" — signals physical escalation on dates
- Communication style: set to "Better in person"
- Pet: listed dog (coach suggests listing one even if you don't have one for emotional engagement)
- Drinking/smoking: "drinks socially at the weekend, smoking when drinking" — advised to appear social/neurotypical

- Interests: kept fun and casual; explicitly told NOT to list "entrepreneurship" or "CEO"
- Prompts — three polarizing examples used:
  - "I can beat you in a game of: saying 'you know what, you were right'" — targets female accountability humor
  - "The most romantic thing you can do for me is: telling me how much you hate men" — deliberately provocative/absurdist
  - "My hidden talent: I'm not like other guys knowing I'm worse" — self-aware irony, plays into cliché bad-boy framing
  - Rationale: prompts generate first messages from women; shown with an example where a girl messaged first responding to a prompt

Texting Strategy & Live Messaging Breakdowns 15:11

---

- Strategy framework: "Max Ops' Playbook texting strategy" — a co-created guide used as their coaching principles
- Conversation 1 — Audrey, 19
  - Opened with: "Seems I found my gym wifey, Audrey" — combines intrigue, curiosity, and indirect validation
  - She responded asking why; follow-up: "Just a hunch, I bet you lift" — indirect compliment implying she's fit
  - Kept energy matching hers throughout — no over-the-top responses
  - When conversation went dry, pivoted: "You know we'd be a cute rave couple, Audrey" — topic shift to shared scenario
  - She replied "Hi, honey" unprompted; coach matched her low-IQ energy with "Hey, silly"
  - Simplified language intentionally to match her communication level
  - Closed with: "Do you dance?" → "I love dancing" → "Perfect. I might step on your toes though" → "I'll lead" → transitioned to Instagram
  - Outcome: James slept with Audrey
- Conversation 2 — Gianna, 19
  - Opened with: "You have one of my weaknesses, Gianna" — intrigue opener
  - She asked what it was; closed with: "It's your eyes, baby" — simple, specific validation (not generic "you're pretty")
  - She said thank you; escalated with: "We should give them to our children" — implicit sexual suggestion
  - She replied "Bet" (dry); pushed forward: "We could start practicing after our date"
  - Date pitch: "I figured we go for a nice night drive and watch the sunset" — she said "I'm down"
  - Closed by getting her number despite minimal text engagement
  - Outcome: James slept with Gianna
- Live texting during video (Rosie):
  - Selling the dream of traveling together

- Pitched vacation imagery; result checked at end of video
- Live texting — photo girl:
  - She said she'd been on vacation; he replied: "You have to make it up to me then"
  - Response: "The only thing I'm seeing is you and me on vacation and you make it up to me with cuddles"
  - Same line copy-pasted to another match — described as efficient
- Key texting principles demonstrated:
  - Open with intrigue/curiosity, not compliments
  - Use indirect validation (implying positive traits rather than stating them)
  - Match and mirror the girl's energy level and vocabulary
  - Sell a "dream" scenario (vacation, date, lifestyle)
  - Transition to Instagram or phone number when interest is confirmed
  - Follow up if she goes quiet (shown with one girl who said "didn't see your message")

Post-Dating-App Phase & Real-World Results 20:28

---

- After accumulating Tinder dates, James gained enough confidence to cold approach women in person
- Extended into his real-life environment: talked to girls in his class and daily surroundings
- Coach describes a "snowball effect": app success → confidence → real-world approaches → girls approaching him
- High-status behavior tactics used in person led to women initiating:
  - Hot Italian/Greek women (described as single mothers) approached James and asked for his number
  - One woman asked if he had a girlfriend — cited as a strong signal of high interest
- Highlight outcome: James slept with a model named Lisa
- The overall arc: Tinder optimization → dates → confidence → in-person game → unsolicited female attention

Final Results & Broader Client Benchmarks 21:36

---

- James's final profile stats: 181 likes on Tinder; 100+ likes on Bumble
- Girls messaging him in real time during the video recording
- James's transformation done over 3 months of what the coach calls "real grit work"
- Coach notes James was "not even one of our best guys"
- Benchmarks from other clients on the same program:

| Client         | Likes  | Age        |
|----------------|--------|------------|
| James          | 181    | 27         |
| Other client A | ~1,000 | 28         |
| Other client B | ~4,000 | Not stated |

- Coach's call to action: "If you're too scared to talk to me, how will you be able to talk to women?"
- Offer framed as open to anyone in a similar position to James — overweight, short, low match count