🏆 The Champion's Mindset in Your Twenties 0:00

- Core claim: feeling like you're "behind" in your twenties is not a problem — it is the mindset of a champion
  - Simply thinking this way already means you are ahead of the majority of your peers
- Contrast with the average young person in their twenties
  - Most peers are preoccupied only with what they'll smoke or how much beer they'll drink that night
  - That, the speaker says, is the full extent of their concern
- Key takeaway: the sense of urgency and ambition itself is the differentiator
  - Feeling behind is "exactly what you should feel" at that age
  - That feeling is precisely what will drive you to become great

> "If you're in your twenties and you feel like you're behind, that's exactly what you should feel, and it's what will make you great."
