

How to Text Girls on Tinder from Teens to MILFs

Channel: Deni Ops · Published: Oct 04, 2026 · Watch: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=VM3InEMKOdI> Source: full transcript

Executive Summary

Dating coach reviews real client text conversations on Hinge across three male age brackets (18, 26, 34), showing how texting pace, tone, date format, and long-term vs. short-term framing must adapt to match the target woman's age and profile signals.

Contents

- 🎯 Overview & Core Philosophy
- 🧑 Case Study 1: Rowan (18) Texting Tyra — The Fast-Paced University Girl
- 🍷 Logistics & Date Execution for Younger Girls
- 🧑 Case Study 2: Zayn (26) Texting Lily — The Mid-20s "Princess"
- 📱 Instagram as the Primary Conversion Channel
- 🧑 Case Study 3: Ben (34) Texting an Older Woman — Slow, Logical, Long-Term
- 📝 Key Takeaways & Service Pitch

🎯 Overview & Core Philosophy 0:00

- Video premise: how texting strategy should differ for women aged 18–30
 - Three real client case studies used as examples
 - Rowan, age 18
 - Zayn, age 26
 - Ben, age 34
 - All client names are aliases
- Core principle: read the woman's profile signals first, then calibrate speed and tone accordingly
- The host texts on behalf of clients as part of a paid coaching/management service

🧑 Case Study 1: Rowan (18) Texting Tyra — The Fast-Paced University Girl 23s

- Target profile: Tyra — self-described "university degenerate," photos showing club drinking
 - Profile signals: promiscuous/party-oriented behavior → interpreted as seeking short-term fun
 - Strategic conclusion: move as fast as possible, aim for same-day or within-3-day date
- Opener: liked her Hinge prompt "I like back and biceps" and replied "Bite mine"

- Rationale: bold, flirty, matches the energy of a high-party-energy profile
- Her response: "Come get me" — high interest immediately
- Follow-up message: "Careful, I'm lowkey crazy, spontaneous. I might come get you tonight."
 - Purpose: demonstrates speed and spontaneity — "strike while the iron is hot"
 - Warning: if you move too slowly, she moves to the next guy
- Connection-building message: "I want to find out. I'm not going to lie, I feel like we would be a dangerously hot couple."
 - Technique: make her visualize being together — "selling the dream"
 - Her reply: "Fought that was obvious" (showing confidence/high interest)
- Recovery line when flirt didn't land perfectly: "I have a hard time reading signs sometimes, but ours is strong."
 - Key lesson: knowing how to fall back from a misread without killing the conversation is critical
- Masculine display: "I just want to pick you up and carry you in my arms so you don't have to walk on the date."
 - Purpose: signals physical strength and masculinity
 - Her pushback: "I don't think you'll be able to lift me."
 - Reframe: she's 5'4" and not overweight — reassure confidently, don't backpedal
 - Response used: "Trust me, I can carry. You're 5'4. You chose me for a reason, baby. If I couldn't carry, I'm not a man."
 - Tactical move: implicitly mock her previous dates who couldn't — creates common ground
 - She asked about weight; team made up a benchmark ("benching 150 kg") — host notes this only works for lighter women
- Moving toward the date:
 - Asked where she lives → got her rough area
 - Said: "I have a good idea for a date we can go on."
 - She revealed she loves cocktails → host notes drinking dates with 18-year-olds convert easily
 - Asked her favorite cocktail and if she's a "competitive drinker" — framing it as dangerous fun
 - Validated her taste: "You have really good taste in your drink" — validates personality, not looks
 - Explicit rule: never validate looks directly; it raises her perceived status and lowers yours
 - Replied to her drinking challenge ("see who blacks out first") by saying he'd be carrying her home — turned mundane question into flirtatious callback to earlier bit
- Drinking date logistics advice:
 - If you're a lightweight: order the lowest-alcohol drinks on the menu, mix in mocktails
 - Most girls only have 3 drinks max on a first date with a stranger — the heavyweight framing rarely gets tested
- Timeline: host says aim for a date within the first 2–3 days of matching; never let it drag to next week

Logistics & Date Execution for Younger Girls 499s

- After establishing vibe, moved conversation to Instagram (team runs client Instagram accounts)
 - She said she doesn't use Instagram → pivoted: "Are you more of a Snapchat person? We can meet Sunday if you like."
 - Outcome: they met Sunday, went to a bar, she went back to his uni accommodation
- US legal drinking age caveat (21): suggested alternatives
 - Drinks at her place or your place
 - Night drive
 - "I'm good at making cocktails" as a pull-back-to-mine angle
 - Bottle of wine at your place

Case Study 2: Zayn (26) Texting Lily — The Mid-20s "Princess" 590s

- Target profile: Lily, roughly 23–24, well-dressed, photos in nice locations
 - Hinge prompts: "Will get rich with me" / "Dating an angel" / white Zinfandel wine preference
 - Profile read: higher maintenance, slight ego, but still open to casual — just more guarded about it
- Opener: custom non-generic line (not revealed verbatim) — her response: "I think I've just fallen in love."
 - Host notes this replaces his old go-to opener
- Response to high interest: "I'm just trying to find my wife. Not going to lie, you might be the one. I bet you would make a great wife."
 - Technique: validate her as potential wife material conditionally ("I bet you could be") — not outright
 - Her reply: "I would love to be your wife" — strong connection signal
 - Rationale: mid-20s women respond to wifey/long-term framing even if the actual goal is casual
- Observation on mid-20s women: they text dryly and don't enjoy long text exchanges
 - Strategic response: move to date setup faster, don't linger in chat
- Date pitch: "drive with dinner and drinks" — asked her favorite food type
 - She replied: "When are you free?" + "Italian" — interpreted as wanting to meet ASAP
 - Key warning: if she signals wanting to meet fast and you delay, someone else takes her
- Date logistics confirmed:
 - Specific restaurant named: Sibo (Italian spot both knew)
 - Pickup time: 7:00 PM, client driving so won't drink much
 - Asked her location to confirm pickup route — "You're on the way"
- Host's rule on date planning: keep it simple — night drives are among his most successful date formats
 - "Girls like the boring stuff. You don't need to go over the top."
- Man's role in date setup: make the reservations, handle logistics, don't make her do the work
 - "Let these girls shop and be pretty."

- Converted to Instagram → she added the client's account → date confirmed

📱 Instagram as the Primary Conversion Channel 859s

- Host has shifted all clients from WhatsApp/iMessage to Instagram for date conversion
 - Claims Instagram converts "at a ridiculously fast rate" compared to other platforms
- Service offered: full Instagram account management for clients in addition to dating app coaching
 - Recommends watching his dedicated Instagram strategy video
- The move from dating app to Instagram is now a standard step in every conversation shown

👤 Case Study 3: Ben (34) Texting an Older Woman — Slow, Logical, Long-Term 882s

- Target profile: woman slightly older, modest/conservative profile, open to short-term but leaning long-term
 - Profile signals: has traveled, experienced, not party-coded
 - Her prompts included princess/royalty framing
- Client background: Ben (34) had never used dating apps before — needed explanation of basic Hinge features (e.g., what a "note" is)
 - A Hinge "note" = a message that auto-appears to matches when they open your chat
 - Mistake nearly made: client wanted to ask the girl what the note was — host had to redirect him
- Opener pivot: "A princess missing her prince. Kind of unruly, don't you think?" — playing into her royalty prompt
- Conversation tone: noticeably slower, more logistical, less flirtatious
 - Topics covered: where each person lives, her background (moved from Greece to UK, studies + works part-time), his lifestyle (travel, runs own business)
 - At 34: emphasize having your own place, running a business, being stable — signals maturity
 - Avoided saying he was studying — at 34 that would be incongruent
- Selling the dream for older women: frame around travel, shared experiences, seeing where things go
 - Example line used: "I'm just looking for someone I can travel with and see where it goes."
 - She replied: "I love that. I also love traveling."
 - Host openly notes some details were fabricated (e.g., claiming to have just returned from Paris)
- "Type A" framing: told her he does all the planning
 - She responded positively — host notes "Type A" is a TikTok-era term women respond well to, meaning organized/proactive
- Conversation closed by getting her Instagram and moving off-app
- Host's summary of older-woman texting: boring, slow, logistics-heavy — but that's how you attract long-term partners

The core meta-lesson: the older the woman, the more you shift from high-energy fun-and-danger framing toward stable, organized, long-term-relationship signaling. Younger women want spontaneity and speed; older women want competence and reliability.

Key Takeaways & Service Pitch 1219s

- Summary framework by age/tone:

Age Group	Texting Pace	Core Framing	Date Format	Key Signals to Hit
18 (uni girl)	Very fast, ADHD energy	Dangerous fun, bad boy	Drinking date	Spontaneity, physical dominance, competitive playfulness
Mid-20s	Fast but slightly measured	Wifey potential, organized man	Drive + dinner + drinks	Date leadership, restaurant reservations, simple plans
30s+	Slow, logical	Stable, travels, long-term	Anything low-key	Own place, business, Type A, shared interests

- Universal rules stated across all cases:
 - Validate personality/taste, never just looks
 - Move to Instagram as fast as possible for conversion
 - Set the date within 2–3 days of matching
 - Keep date plans simple — night drives and drinks outperform elaborate plans
 - Man handles all logistics and reservations
- Services offered by host's company:
 - Full Instagram account management
 - Dating app coaching
 - Ghostwriting texts on client's behalf
 - Guarantee: 99+ likes and a date in the first week
 - Testimonials available on their website