Hinge Profile Setup 0:44

- Uses AI-generated images placed over real reference photos to enhance appearance
 - "Swipe stopper" is a boat photo — half-asleep, casual — AI-generated from another man's image
 - Claims it generated 100+ likes within the first week on Hinge
 - Second picture: smiling, high-appeal, also AI-generated
 - Third picture: in-bed shot — described as "selling the idea of what it looks like to have sex with me"
 - Additional pictures: candid restaurant shot, holiday photo (hobbies), and one unposed real photo
- Why include an unposed real photo:
 - If all photos look hyper-posed or model-like, girls assume you're fake and get scared off
- Overall profile aesthetic: "dominant daddy energy" — designed to attract younger women and women wanting one-night stands
- Admits all key photos are AI-generated from other men's images mapped onto his face
- Redirects deep profile questions to a separate dedicated profile-setup video

Hinge Texting Breakdown 1:36

- Opening line used: "I can make this picture better" — a pictures-based compliment opener
- Core texting philosophy:
 - Validate good behavior, "punish" (withdraw/ignore) bad behavior
 - Mirror the girl's language and energy so she feels you are alike
 - Make assumptions about her to project boldness and dominance
- Love language mirroring:
 - Asks her love language, then confirms his is "conveniently" the same (physical touch, acts of service)
 - Introduces PDA talk — frames showing her off publicly as pride, which makes her feel validated
- Dream-selling framework in texts:
 - Talks about night drives, nice dinners, showing her off
 - Sets a transactional tone early: "as long as you can return the favor" — keeps dominant frame
 - Sells the "passenger princess" fantasy explicitly
- Checking intent:
 - Always asks if she's looking for something long-term as a safety check — avoids girls who'll ghost after getting "fboy vibes"
- When she says "you're too good for me" or doubts his authenticity:
 - Addresses concern directly: "I'll take that as a compliment" and reassures without over-promising
- Progresses conversation to Instagram as soon as trust is established

Moving to Instagram & Pre-Date Messages 5:58

- Gives Instagram as soon as possible — claims a ~74% close rate from Instagram vs. Hinge
- Instagram strategy:
 - Posts stories constantly; multiple girls message, like, and comment unsolicited
 - Only ~100 story views — emphasises you do not need to be famous
 - Posts mundane content (KFC, £20 dinners with a friend) alongside lifestyle content — relatability matters
 - The one standout element on his Instagram is his car; most other content is ordinary
- Pre-date conversation on Instagram with this specific girl:
 - Girl had a Hinge prompt about cars (German/Japanese) — he deliberately withheld the M5 on Hinge for a surprise reveal on Instagram
 - Sent photos and videos of his BMW M5; offered to let her drive it (never intended to follow through)
 - Talked logistics: she's 45 minutes away, he offers to pick her up and bring her to Manchester
 - Sets the date early in the conversation: "Do you drink? I know some good cocktail bars"
 - She took a day off work to meet him on a Thursday

- Asked her favorite cocktail, favorite food, playlist — used her Doja Cat posts to curate a playlist to send her
- Promised flowers in her favorite color (lilac/tulips/roses) — forgot to actually buy them; she didn't care
- Pre-handled the "staying over" objection over text: framed it as logistical (too far to drive back at 3 a.m.) until she volunteered to bring a bag "just in case"
- Lies used during texting (acknowledged openly):
 - Claims to be Spanish (is Afghan/British); used Google Translate when she responded in Spanish
 - Describes himself as a "couples therapist" rather than a dating coach for men
 - Pretended not to speak English properly to defuse a moment where he sounded robotic
- Key principle stated: goal of Instagram/WhatsApp texting is to set a date — not to become a texting buddy
- Advises against copying his texts word-for-word; every girl is different — take the principles, not the scripts

Car Game & Logistics 8:21

- Does money or a nice car matter?
 - Emphatic no — not one girl has ever complimented or mentioned his car
 - Bought a Mercedes thinking it would improve his dating life; it made zero difference
 - Friend Max picked up girls in a "dinger" (cheap car) with good results
 - Roughly half his dates he doesn't even drive — takes the train or Uber instead
 - His cars (RS3, M5, RS7 mentioned) are a personal hobby, not a dating tool
 - Exception: if the girl is specifically a "car girl," she will respond enthusiastically
- When arriving to pick her up:
 - Sends a picture from inside the car (showing Rolex, Van Cleef bracelet, interior) — flex subtly whatever genuine asset you have (veiny arms, jawline, biceps, etc.)
 - Texts "I'm outside, take your time"
- Car comfort trick:
 - 10 minutes before arrival, max out heated seats and climate control on her side
 - She'll take her jacket off shortly after getting in — removes a physical barrier
- On arrival: hug her, open the car door for her
- Optionally bring flowers to kill the "fboy" image — he forgot this date; she still came home with him
- Once driving:
 - Ask how long it took her to get ready, how she was feeling before the date
 - Let her connect to Bluetooth and play her music, then comment on it

"No girl has ever complimented my car. The cars I buy are for me."

Outfit & Pre-Date Setup 7:28

- She suggested a specific outfit for him; he ignored it as it was uncomfortable
- His actual first-date outfit: taken from a bathroom mirror selfie in a bar
 - Wears his bag, designer Van Cleef bracelet, Rolex — but notes no girl has ever pointed these out
- Designer items do not improve results; confirmed this repeatedly and says it was a "big hitting point" when he realised this
- Girl wore a revealing outfit (knee-high boots, short dress from Shein) — he encouraged it during pre-date chat
- Checks in on her anxiety before the date: "How are you feeling?" — used to reassure nervous girls

Date Strategy: Bar Crawl & City Exploration 33:20

- Full date structure (step by step):
 - Step 1: Pick her up (car or train/Uber if drinking heavily)
 - Step 2: Explore a city you know well together
 - Step 3: Run a bar crawl — alcohol is the central mechanism
 - Step 4: Take her back to your place (or hers) for sex
- Why alcohol and not dinner/ice cream:
 - Dinner makes her bloated, costs ~$150 at a nice place, and you pay the whole bill
 - Ice cream is "too simple" and won't create arousal
 - Alcohol makes her horny; 4–6 drinks is roughly his benchmark (less needed if you're naturally attractive/charismatic)
 - He has a high tolerance so drinks more; his friend Max only needs 3–4 drinks with girls
- City exploration tips:
 - Walk around, point at random things, make jokes — he mocks Bradford/cousin accents and "diagnoses" other couples as a fake couples therapist
 - Take photos with her in cool spots (media city, the harbor in Manchester)
 - Be physically dominant in photos — suggests "choke her" for pictures
 - Cool locations are free: nice-looking bar bathrooms, riverside walks, parked Lamborghinis on the street (none of which are his)
- Bar selection:
 - Recommends doing a reconnaissance walk of your city with a friend first to find the best spots
 - He and friend Max tried every bar/restaurant in Manchester to identify the best
 - Reveals one bar: The Alchemist — good for theatrical cocktails as a starting point
 - Does not reveal his other bars to protect his privacy
 - Drinks cost £10–14 per drink at his chosen bars
- Never do:
 - Dinner dates on a first date
 - Ice cream dates on a first date

- Table service (forces you to pay the whole bill)

Date Costs & Paying 41:29

- Total date cost: £40–50 excluding car fuel
- Fuel is his biggest expense (~£1,000/month for a 500bhp car) — irrelevant for most people
- Paying strategy:
 - Pay for approximately the first two rounds
 - Then get the girl to pay for the third or fourth round — go round for round
 - Guys who pay for everything get bad results; girls lose interest
 - "The girl doesn't expect you to pay for the whole thing"

Getting Her Back to Your Place 42:14

- Transition lines to use after the bar crawl:
 - "I have wine back at my place"
 - "Do you want to see a house tour of my place?"
 - "Do you have a bottle of wine at your place?"
 - "I make cocktails" — invite her over under that frame
- Then get an Uber back to yours or hers depending on which line worked
- Pre-handled the objection over text already (she had agreed to potentially stay over)
- Claims he has never had a date fail to end at his place using this method
- Once back: cooking together, cuddling, sex follow naturally

Police Car Seizure — and Still Closing 28:23

- During a date, girl performed a sex act on him while driving with windows down
- Police pulled him over — accused him of the act under "antisocial" Section 59 powers
- He denied it; they couldn't prove it, but seized the car anyway citing the loud exhaust
 - Notes: his exhaust is valved and not actually loud; criticises UK police
 - He had previously received a 40-day driving ban for a similar incident
- His response:
 - Calmly said "no problem, I'll get the car from the compound tomorrow"
 - Called an Uber for himself and the girl
 - Went back to his place and still had sex with her that same night
- Lesson framed: embarrassing or logistical setbacks don't have to end the date — stay calm, adapt, keep moving
- Explicitly tells viewers: do not drink and drive; the opening "tips" about driving recklessly were sarcastic

Coaching Pitch & Closing Remarks 43:19

- Offers 1-on-1 dating coaching services
 - Will set up your dating app profile
 - Will make/generate pictures for you
 - Teach texting strategy
 - Tell you what to do on dates
 - Scout city locations for you to walk girls through
- Lists client results to counter common objections:
 - 5'3" short client — got results (counters height excuse)
 - Overweight client — got results (counters looks excuse)
 - Indian client — got results (counters ethnicity excuse)
 - Virgin client — got results (counters experience excuse)
 - Older client — got results (counters age excuse)
- Recommends watching his separate full Hinge profile + texting guide video for broader context
- Signs off claiming he's going to "sleep with six girls now" (comedic/boastful closer)
