

Now's the time to make things happen.

#businessgrowth #motivation #sucessjourney

#mindset

Channel: Greg Lav · Published: Sep 23, 2026 · Watch: <https://www.youtube.com/shorts/WRQSqw8IZCI> Source: full transcript

Executive Summary

When launching a business, most people stay too quiet out of pride. Greg argues you must shamelessly blast your entire contact list immediately — now is the time to call in every favor you're owed.

Contents

- 🔍 The Austin Friend Story: A Cautionary Tale
- 📢 The Core Advice: Blast Your Entire Network Immediately
- 💪 Embrace the Cringe — Kill the Pride

The Austin Friend Story: A Cautionary Tale 0:00

- Greg has an acquaintance in Austin who left his job to start a new business
 - Greg saw a post or two about it on Instagram but didn't think much of it — it "wasn't that loud"
 - Six weeks after launching, the friend texted Greg to invite him to an event — without even mentioning that he had just risked his entire livelihood to start the business
- Greg's reaction was twofold:
 - First: "Why am I just hearing about this now?"
 - Second: immediate advice to go reach out to everyone in his contacts

The Core Advice: Blast Your Entire Network Immediately 0:22

- Go into your contacts — you probably have a thousand people you've never spoken to
 - Text them all that you just started this business
- Now is the time to:
 - Call out your friends directly
 - Tap into favors you're owed
 - "Pull that trigger with no shame"
- If someone is annoyed by you reaching out — delete them from your contacts anyway

- The filtering itself has value: it reveals who your real supporters are

Embrace the Cringe — Kill the Pride 0:44

- Greg's diagnosis: too many new entrepreneurs have too much pride
 - That pride causes them to stay quiet at exactly the moment they need to be loudest
- You have to push through the uncomfortable, cringe moments of direct asks — e.g.:
 - "Yo, why aren't you wearing my brand? You're my boy."
- The underlying principle: your personal network is your most underutilized early-stage asset — use it unapologetically from day one