Opening: Property Frustrations and Year Two Recap 0:00

- Pool lights installed but the wrong ones were ordered — £300 wasted
 - Discovered the error after fitting, requiring a full replacement purchase
- Pool heater was ordered in March, arrived in May, still not properly installed by late August
 - "We've got nine days now until September 1st" — founder considers that the start of winter in Spain
- Barcelona sinks purchased over a year ago, still not fitted
 - Likens the delay to not knowing how long it takes to build a stadium
 - Key frustration: "You said it would be done a year ago, and now nobody's getting back in touch with me"
 - Describes feeling like "giving up" on the property project
- Despite property woes, year two was a landmark year
 - Described as the "hockey stick year" — exponential growth that "exploded"
 - Trips were described as "insane"
 - Large numbers of new members joined the community

- Sets up the core tension: more growth demands more resources, money, and accountability from every team member
 - "If one person or a single part of your team isn't pulling their weight, it drags the entire company down"

The Hospitality 2.0 Vision 1:40

- Founder describes a new obsession: "Hospitality 2.0"
 - Premise: hotels haven't meaningfully changed in roughly 100 years — since the era of saloons
 - Compares the stagnation to what Netflix did to media: one dominant, all-encompassing platform
- The vision is a single global membership covering:
 - Gym membership
 - Spa facilities
 - Networking
 - Podcast facilities on-site
 - Villas available to buy and rent
 - Hotel rooms
 - "Everything, absolutely everything taken care of"
- Members would travel the world and use all facilities continuously under one membership
- Compared loosely to co-living but described as vastly larger in scope
 - "It's so much bigger. And everyone on YouTube just knows like, oh, this guy sells a course"
 - Founder frustrated that the scale of the idea isn't immediately understood by outside observers
- Bali cited as a place already pushing hospitality in this direction, inspiring the next trip

"This is Hospitality 2.0. This is the next phase of this entire industry."

ONM Membership Tiers Explained 4:04

- Three tiers presented under the ONM brand:

Tier	Cost	What You Get
ONM Education	Free	Access to educational content
ONM Work	£450	Course access + ONM network + lifestyle price lock-in
ONM Lifestyle	Future pricing (potentially £10,000+)	Full members club experience

- Key incentive for ONM Work members: price lock guarantee

- "If it goes up to £10,000 one day, which it looks as though it's going to, you will be locked in at the price that you pay today"
- Described as an honored guarantee for every paying member
- Sports memberships cited as a comparator — people already pay ~£300/month for those

Bali Trip: Arrival and Villa Life 3:21

- ONM's next community trip is held in Bali
- Accommodation: a million-dollar villa
 - Includes full housekeeping staff — described as helping with "literally whatever you want"
 - Private chef included with the villa
 - American chef mentioned specifically
- Arrival reaction described as visually stunning — pool, surroundings, depth of the pool noted with excitement
- Small personal workspace (desk) also part of the setup
- General atmosphere: "just going around and living the dream life"

Community Building: Meals, Dress, and Brotherhood 8:05

- Founder places high importance on communal dining during trips
 - "I think it's so important to break bread together, to share tables together"
 - Views it as the best mechanism for community building and creating family-like bonds
- Secondary purpose: encouraging men to dress up and make an effort in appearance
 - "Dress up, look nice, smell good"
 - Described as an increasingly rare act for men in the current era
 - Framed as a way to "remind yourself what you're doing all of this for"
- Group dinner shown as a structured, intentional event — not just a casual outing

Surprise Guest and Member Stories 9:03

- Justin introduced as a founding member — was present at the original ONM launch party
 - Based in Hong Kong, so appearances are rare and treated as special occasions
 - Told other members he wouldn't be able to make the Bali trip — then surprised everyone by showing up
 - "When he does make an appearance, it's a special event"
- Moment used to illustrate the depth of relationships forming within the community
- Conversation touches on the long-term culture of ONM as it scales
 - Discussion about how values and norms will need to be maintained as membership potentially reaches thousands

- Analogy: "You're the Roy Keane to the Ronaldo" — implying a disciplinarian / standard-setter role within the group

Activities: Tubing and Adventure 12:14

- River tubing (referred to locally as tubing) is a major activity highlight
 - Founder's verdict: "Probably the most fun thing that I have ever done in my life. I loved it."
- Previous trips referenced for context on how Bali fits into the broader ONM travel history
 - Destinations mentioned in passing: Iceland, Portugal (Porto), Montenegro (Budva), and now Bali
- Trip milestone noted: ONM logo stitched onto seats at what is described as the biggest stadium in Europe
 - The stadium's associated sports franchise described as second or third biggest in Europe, potentially top five in the world
 - "Somebody has stitched it in. It's like mind-blowing"

Tulum Trip: Honoring the American Members 14:38

- Founder unable to attend the Tulum trip due to volume of work building out ONM systems
 - Described as "absolutely swamped" with ONM Work, ONM Education, and ONM Lifestyle development
- Tulum trip designed exclusively for North American members
- Acknowledgment of North American members' loyalty and sacrifice:
 - Consistently flown 8–10 hours to Europe for trips
 - Flights are expensive and they have "done it without complaining"
 - "They have made this business what it is today"
- Tulum trip framed as giving something back to that cohort specifically
- Founder's absence described as genuinely disappointing personally

Digital Nomad vs. Business Growth Debate 15:27

- Candid conversation among members about balancing travel and business growth
- Core question debated: what is the optimal travel cadence for an ambitious entrepreneur?
 - Option A: one trip per month with 3-month lock-in periods in one location
 - Option B: full digital nomad lifestyle — constant movement, balanced at all times
- Advice given: pick one low-cost city as a base for 3–4 months before moving
 - Bali cited as an example of such a base
- Personal framing: a spectrum from "zero travel, maximize business" to "maximize travel, let business slide"
 - "There's somewhere on that spectrum where I think is the sweet spot for me. I just need to find it."
- Mexico / Tulum member mentioned: booked a one-way ticket and has stayed without looking back
 - Mexican residency path discussed:

- Prove income of over $5,000/month for 6+ months → temporary residency → path to permanent residency
- Alternative: marriage
- Tourist entry: 180 days automatically on arrival
- Underlying insight: don't let logistical plotting replace actual decision-making about what you want to optimize for

Online Business and Content Strategy Discussion 17:15

- Conversation about the best online business model for profitability
 - High-ticket coaching or online offer identified as the best profit-per-effort model when combined with content creation
 - UGC (User Generated Content) work described as lower-margin and less satisfying — "you kind of get [screwed]"
 - Coaching content requires time: building quality content, curating a quality audience with engaged followers
- Content as leverage discussed:
 - References the concept of the "four forms of leverage" — content/media identified as one
 - Key insight: a large audience is NOT a prerequisite for a successful online offer
 - Example given: someone with 4,000 followers making $100,000/month
 - Content creates one-to-many leverage but doesn't require fame to be effective

Year Three Pressure and the Billion-Dollar Ambition 19:36

- Founder likens ONM's current position to "second album syndrome" in music
 - First album = your entire life's work compressed into one debut
 - ONM year one: launched the house and the early community concept
 - ONM year two: trips became the main identity and the brand's defining feature
- Year three expectations from members and critics:
 - Members expect bigger, better, more expensive trips
 - "It's a membership. It has to improve every single year."
 - Critics and detractors are expecting failure — raising the personal stakes
 - "This has to be perfect. It has to be better than last year."
- Competitive landscape acknowledgment:
 - Many creators now building "billion dollar company" narratives online
 - Founder's belief: ONM is "the only one with a genuine realistic chance to actually make that happen"
 - "There's just so many people doing this online business thing now. There's so many contenders, but only one champ can wear the belt."

- Closes on an uncompromising statement of intent:
 - "I'm not here to play my part. I want the entire [belt]."
- Unrelenting nature of business growth summarized: "It's an unrelenting game."

The central tension of the video: year two's success has raised the bar so high that year three must be exceptional — and the founder knows it.
