

I think he's coming back

Channel: Tim Luong · Published: Aug 26, 2026 · Watch: https://www.youtube.com/shorts/hn4a7_CHTgk Source: full transcript

Executive Summary

Tim Luong introduces a skeptical first-timer to Katz's Deli in New York. After waiting in line and taking one bite, the friend is instantly converted — and Tim declares he'll never visit New York without coming back.

Contents

-  The Katz's Deli Experience

The Katz's Deli Experience 0:00

- Tim is with a friend who has apparently never been to Katz's Deli before
 - The friend was skeptical and didn't fully trust Tim's recommendation
 - They had to wait in line to get their food — a detail Tim uses to underscore the spot's popularity and worth
- Upon receiving the food, Tim frames the moment as him "putting the guy on" — introducing him to something great
 - "I'm about to put this guy on, man. He's never going to go back to New York and not get this place."
- Tim asks the staff what the place is called, getting the name on camera: Katz's Deli
- He takes a bite and immediately validates it: "That's a good bite. That is a good bite."
- The friend's reaction at 0:22 is an emphatic, repeated "Oh my god. Oh my god." followed by "Bro."
 - The reaction confirms the food lived up to — and likely exceeded — expectations
 - Tim's response is a callback to his earlier confidence: "I told you, bro. This guy doesn't trust, man."
- The implied conclusion (and the video's title): the friend will be coming back to Katz's Deli on future New York visits