

Life is not just about money.

Channel: Tim Luong · Published: Aug 28, 2026 · Watch: https://www.youtube.com/shorts/hqT6w_UUsYU Source: full transcript

Executive Summary

Tim Luong earned $300k/month at 25 but was physically and emotionally broken. Money without health, friends, and balance leads to deep regret years down the line.

Contents

-  The $300k/Month Wake-Up Call
-  The Cost of Ignoring Everything Else

The $300k/Month Wake-Up Call 0:00

- At age 25, Tim ran a business generating $300,000 per month in revenue
 - Despite that financial success, he describes himself as "completely miserable"
 - Physical symptoms of stress:
 - Gained significant weight ("I was fat because the business was so stressful")
 - Experienced hair loss
 - Could not sleep through the night
 - This crisis forced a realization: money is not the whole game

The Cost of Ignoring Everything Else 0:23

- Tim outlines the hidden losses that come with single-minded money pursuit:
 - Poor health (being overweight, physically rundown)
 - No meaningful friendships or social life
 - Working 7 days a week with no rest or enjoyment
- The long-term consequence: waking up in 10, 20, or 30 years filled with regret

"You might have this money, but if you're fat and miserable, you don't have friends that you enjoy hanging out with... you're going to wake up in 10, 20, 30 years from now with regrets."

- Core takeaway: wealth means little if health, relationships, and quality of life are sacrificed to obtain it