

You have to love what you do

Channel: Tim Luong · Published: Aug 29, 2026 · Watch: <https://www.youtube.com/shorts/dsdha4M6lfM> Source: full transcript

Executive Summary

Tim Luong offers a two-question personal framework for evaluating whether to keep pursuing something: daily excitement upon waking and the ability to imagine doing it forever.

Contents

-  The Framework: Two Questions to Ask Yourself
- 😊 What Happiness Looks Like in Practice

The Framework: Two Questions to Ask Yourself 0:00

- The framework for deciding whether to continue doing something is described as "very simple" — just two self-directed questions:
 - Question 1: Do I wake up every single day excited to wake up?
 - Question 2: Can I do this for the rest of my life?
- If the answer to the first question is yes, it's treated as a strong signal that you genuinely love what you're doing.

😊 What Happiness Looks Like in Practice 0:10

- The happiest people Tim knows share a common trait: they are not chasing the next thing.
 - They wake up excited to do what they do — it doesn't take them a long time to get out of bed.
 - They are not dreading their day.
- Tim applies the same lens to himself, asking whether he can sustain his current pursuits for life and reflecting on why he wakes up excited each day.