

Channel: Tim Luong · Published: Aug 31, 2026 · Watch: https://www.youtube.com/shorts/_YGrffgUGsI Source: full transcript

Executive Summary

A brief comedic short in which a group jokes about attraction to Asian women, using the iconic Tokyo Drift song as a running gag sound effect whenever an attractive Asian girl walks up.

Contents

-  The Skit

The Skit 0:00

- The short opens with someone saying "Yellow fever" — slang used to describe non-Asian men who are particularly attracted to Asian women
- The premise: whenever an attractive Asian girl walks toward the group, the Tokyo Drift song plays as a comedic sound cue
 - "You know she's hot when she's walking up to you and you hear the Tokyo Drift song"
 - The drift car sound effect plays as the punchline
- The term "ABG" is used — stands for "Asian Baby Girl," a cultural slang term for a particular style of young Asian woman
 - The joke repeats: every time she walks up, they just hear a car drift sound
- The skit ends with the straightforward reactions: "Oh. Shawty Asian. Damn it." — playing up mock helplessness at the attraction