Why I Went Keto in My Late 30s

Channel: Brandon Carter · Published: Nov 12, 2026 · Watch: https://www.youtube.com/shorts/e7YirOes7VE Source: full transcript

📋 Executive Summary

Brandon Carter shares that approaching 40, staying lean became harder, and cutting carbs via keto made it noticeably easier — he encourages skeptics to try it as a temporary tool, not a lifetime commitment.

📑 Contents

- 🎂 Why Age Changed His Approach to Diet
- 🥑 His Take on Keto and Carb Elimination
- 🛠️ Keto as a Flexible Tool

🎂 Why Age Changed His Approach to Diet 0:00

- He is turning 40 at the time of recording
  - In his later 30s he noticed it became "a lot more difficult" to stay in shape
  - This age-related shift was the core trigger for experimenting with keto

🥑 His Take on Keto and Carb Elimination 0:00

- Going keto made it easier for him to "stay ripped" compared to eating carbs
- Addresses the common objection — "I can never give up carbs"
  - His response: he does many things others say they can't do
  - He frames not eating carbs as "the least impressive thing" on that list, downplaying how hard it actually is

🛠️ Keto as a Flexible Tool 0:23

- Explicitly says you don't have to commit to keto permanently the way he has

> "You don't have to marry it like me. You don't have to do it forever. It could be just a tool that you can break out when you feel like you need."

- Encourages viewers who are curious to "really give it a shot"
  - Framing: treat it as a situational strategy rather than a rigid lifestyle rule