He Made 100K in One Month Doing This

Channel: Brandon Carter · Published: Nov 05, 2026 · Watch: https://www.youtube.com/shorts/CJV9hJPPI5M Source: full transcript

📋 Executive Summary

A stranger credited making $100K in one month to "total immersion" — wearing noise-cancelling headphones and listening to sales training content every waking, non-conversational moment for two weeks until sales instincts sharpen dramatically.

📑 Contents

- 🤝 The Encounter That Started It
- 🎧 The Total Immersion Method Explained
- ⚡ The Result After Two Weeks

🤝 The Encounter That Started It 0:00

- A stranger stopped Brandon in the design district and showed him his pay stub
  - The man claimed he made $100K in a single month doing sales
  - He attributed the result entirely to a practice he called "total immersion"

🎧 The Total Immersion Method Explained 0:07

- Get two pairs of noise-cancelling headphones
  - At least one pair must be waterproof (for the shower)
  - The two-pair requirement is practical: one charges while you wear the other
- Listen to sales training content 24 hours a day during all waking, non-social time
  - The only two exceptions are: when talking to another person, or when asleep
  - Specific moments called out for listening:
    - Immediately upon waking up
    - In the shower
    - While getting dressed
    - During your commute
    - At the gym

> "As soon as you wake up, be listening to sales training in the shower... during your commute, at the gym."

⚡ The Result After Two Weeks 0:43

- After roughly two weeks of consistent total immersion, a noticeable shift occurs
  - "The game starts to slow down" — you begin to anticipate what will happen next in a sales conversation
  - Compared to Neo's bullet-dodging scene in The Matrix: pattern recognition becomes so refined it feels almost predictive
- The core idea is that volume and repetition of exposure rewires instinctive responses in sales situations