Executive Summary

Based on running "countless Tinder accounts" over 2-3 years, the creator breaks down exactly which types of photos attract women in three age brackets (18-23, 23-29, 30+), using a five-factor scoring system, with tactics including AI-generated images.

🎯 The Five-Factor Photo Scoring Framework 1:10

- Every photo in a profile is evaluated across five dimensions:
  - Attractiveness — how physically appealing the photo makes you look
  - Personality — whether the photo reveals something interesting or genuine about you
  - Trust & Realness — how authentic and non-AI/non-fake the photo appears
  - Approachability — how easy and non-intimidating you look to talk to
  - Lifestyle — what the background/context communicates about your life
- Example scores for three sample photos:

|----------------------------------------------------|----------------|-------------|------------------|-----------------|-----------|
| Basic selfie with ice cream                        | 6/10           | 8/10        | Very high        | 9/10            | 3/10      |
| Beach shirtless, hyper-posed                       | 9/10           | 6/10        | 8/10             | 7/10            | —         |
| Side-profile beach, clothed, vascular arms visible | 9/10           | 5/10        | Lower            | 4/10            | 9/10      |

- Key insight on hyper-posed photos: in the current dating app climate, girls prefer a "real personality" over a "hyper polished" look
  - A basic selfie scores higher on approachability than a professional beach shot because it feels more authentic
  - Side-profile or unclear shots hurt trust and realness even if the body looks good

The Shirtless Picture Golden Rule 3:49

- Shirtless pictures are described as "king" — the single biggest factor in increasing one-night-stand conversion

"If you have a shirtless picture, your chances of sleeping with a girl on a one night stand is much higher."

- Recommended shirtless picture count depends on your goal:
  - Casual/one-night-stand goal: more shirtless pictures are fine
  - Long-term relationship goal: max 1-2 shirtless pictures — more than that reads as "fuckboy" and repels women seeking commitment

Age Group 1: Women 18-23 4:33

---

- Described as the easiest age group to attract; make snap decisions (under one second) on swipes
- Attractiveness requirements:
  - Get lean — described as "90% of the game" for this age range
  - Tidy hair, good frame, good lighting are the core pillars
  - Highlight your best features (jaw, hair, eyes cited as personal examples)
  - AI-generated photos presented as a legitimate workaround if you can't achieve the look naturally
    - Caution: cheap AI (e.g., ChatGPT) produces obviously fake results; quality generation is key
- Lifestyle photos — what works:
  - Fun but NOT expensive — these girls are not impressed by wealth displays
  - Cheap lads holidays, nights out, beaches, festivals, normal cars, dogs/pets
  - A £6 pint in a beer garden beats a Rolex on your wrist
  - Example: a photo with a borrowed cat got far more girl responses than any money-signaling photo
  - Example: a photo at a Weeknd concert festival works well
  - Example: a photo working on a car signals "handyman personality" not wealth (deliberately shot to hide that it's a Mercedes AMG)
  - Example: sending photos of meals (even borrowed from other girls) and saying "you cook like a girl" — creates easy conversation
- Lifestyle photos — what doesn't work:

- Flexing expensive items (Rolex, luxury cars) — girls this age don't care and it can scare them off as "too good to be true"
- Approachability:
  - Photos must look hyper-real and casual, NOT posed
  - You must look attainable
  - Professional photography actively hurts you — girls interpret it as desperation
    - "Girls are going to think you're a loser" if you get professional shots
    - Personal anecdote: the creator had to send video proof he was real because his photos looked too polished
  - Good example photos from "Max": bed selfie with two teddy bears from IKEA, cooking a random meal, sitting in Manchester library
    - None of these cost money or required planning
- Trust & Realness:
  - AI and catfishing awareness is high even in this younger group
  - Avoid heavy FaceApp filters or obvious AI edits
  - Keep Instagram consistent — a large time gap in posts will get you blocked
    - Anecdote: a girl blocked the creator after noticing a "nine-year gap" in his Instagram
  - Real, boring, unfiltered photos score highest here
- Personality:
  - Don't flex money or status — it doesn't work on this age group
  - Show relatability: pets, bands, hobbies, casual moments
  - Example profile breakdown (AI-generated, young guy in early 20s):
    - Selfie in bed
    - Selfie in a beat-up car (not a nice car)
    - Mirror selfie
    - Wearing a Halloween mask in bed
    - Shooting range photo (US-specific)
    - Photo in a cowboy hat
  - The goal: be memorable and easy to start a conversation with, not impressive

Age Group 2: Women 23-29 14:16

---

- Described as more difficult and more selective than the 18-23 group
- These women have "been around the block" and can identify fuckboy behavior quickly
- Core shift in what they're evaluating: moved from "is this fun?" to "is this guy going somewhere?"
- Attractiveness:
  - Standard gym mirror shirtless photos no longer work — too fuckboy

- Shirtless photos must have context and effort behind them (e.g., on a boat, rock climbing)
- Example: shirtless on a boat = good; shirtless in a gym = bad for this age range
- You need to become a "distinguished fuckboy" — more evolved presentation
- Lifestyle:
  - Pub and nightclub photos no longer sufficient
  - Replace with: hikes, museums, cool/cultural locations
  - Aim for a mature, "life together" aesthetic
  - Example tactic: went to Selfridges Manchester, used a Goyard bag as a prop, had Max sit in a chair with button-up shirt and glasses — girls responded with "handsome nerd" comments
  - AI generation is presented as the easy solution for anyone who can't organically get these photos
- Approachability:
  - Now need to signal emotional maturity — not a chaotic, immature man
  - Look like a normal, grounded person; not try-hard masculine
  - Example good photos: standing in a garden in a button-up shirt (effortless), friendly restaurant photo
  - Personal test: telling 18-year-olds he "used to deal" — they loved it; telling older women the same — they walked out
    - Demonstrates these women filter for stability and emotional availability
  - Do NOT be nonchalant — that reads as a loser at 25+
- Trust & Realness:
  - This group has been catfished the most and is highly suspicious
  - Bad AI photos = immediate loss
  - Don't use photos from 10 years ago
  - Use natural iPhone photos; having some throwback/childhood Instagram posts actually helps credibility
  - Anecdote: a woman said his video messages were "AI generated" — nothing could convince her otherwise
- Personality:
  - You are now competing on memorability, not looks
  - Show a distinguished hobby — a cool bar, a gig, something that makes you stand out
  - Example profile breakdown (guy in his 30s used as illustration):
    - Holiday photo (shirtless but contextual)
    - Simple selfie (boosts trust)
    - Cooking a barbecue
    - Shirtless in a hotel elevator on holiday
    - Skiing photo
    - One slightly degenerate concert/rave photo (for variety — shows range, not just sophistication)
  - The bio from this profile is shown and presented as freely copyable

Age Group 3: Women 30+ 21:25

---

- Described as the most difficult group to "game" — they are experienced and perceptive
- Creator personally avoids this age group and recommends younger men do the same unless seeking a long-term partner
- Attractiveness:
  - You do NOT need to be lean — being in good general health is sufficient
  - Slight visible abs helpful but not required; just avoid looking obviously unhealthy
  - Creator's example: at ~90kg bulk he struggled with younger women but attracted older women easily
  - Bigger priority is how you dress and present yourself — groomed hair, well-fitted clothes
  - These women are not expecting "prime 22-year-old chiseled abs" — they want signs of stability and longevity
- Lifestyle:
  - Highest bar of all three groups for life experience
  - They want someone who "makes them feel small again" — more experienced than they are
  - Travel is non-negotiable: by 30 you should have photos from at least 3 countries
    - "If you're over 30 and you haven't got pictures from Thailand, you're a loser"
  - Show real-world life skills — home improvement, practical competence, meaningful hobbies
  - They do NOT want to be your mother — don't project immaturity or dependence
- Approachability:
  - By 30, most of these women have dated emotionally unavailable men and will "read you like a book"
  - Example: Max dated an older woman called Paulina who immediately called out that he was just trying to use her for sex
  - Strategy required: act educational, platonic, boring — do NOT signal sexual interest overtly
  - You're performing a long-term-partner persona, not a hookup persona
  - Creator's explicit recommendation: if you just want casual sex, don't pursue 30+ women — go for 18-22 year olds instead
- Trust & Realness:
  - Counterintuitively described as the easiest group to fool with AI photos
  - Older women are less tech-savvy and less likely to identify AI-generated images
  - "You can catfish these [women]. You can use FaceApp. You can lie."
  - This is framed as the one age group where even obviously AI-looking photos went undetected
- Personality:
  - Clubbing and raving photos are completely off the table
  - Show: bars, gigs with a sophisticated vibe, fine dining, travel, distinguished hobbies
  - Tactic: post photos on your story of dates with other women — if a girl has ghosted you, jealousy will bring her back

- Anecdote: a girl spammed him with "why did you cheat on me" after he posted a date on his story
- Example profile breakdown (man in late 30s):
  - Shirtless holiday photo (not too try-hard — reads as "happens to be in shape" not "gym rat")
  - Simple holiday photo
  - Boring restaurant photo
  - Another holiday photo
  - "Old money" aesthetic costume photo in a library setting
  - Another restaurant photo
- Overall tone: more subdued, mature, variety-focused
