

What I Learned From Helping 1,000+ Guys on Tinder

Channel: Deni Ops · Published: Jul 26, 2026 · Watch: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=LauBVYj88kE> Source: full transcript

Executive Summary

Deni Ops shares a three-step Tinder framework — categorize girls into 5 types, match your opener to her category, and close at the right conversation stage — backed by live real-time texting examples from client accounts.

Contents

-  The 5 Girl Categories
-  Openers and How to Match Them to Category
-  The Right Time to Close
-  Four Conversation Case Studies
-  Live Texting Walkthroughs

The 5 Girl Categories 0:21

- The core premise: every girl on Tinder fits into one of five categories, and identifying the right one before messaging is the foundation of the whole system
 - Girls can overlap categories (e.g., "weird" + "slut") — in that case, pick the dominant one
- Category 1 — Universal
 - Boring, generic, no standout hobbies or style
 - Described as an "NPC with boring hobbies" whose only notable feature might be something small like her nails
 - Works as the default fallback when nothing specific stands out
- Category 2 — Niche
 - Girls with specific, identifiable hobbies or interests that make them stand out
 - Example given: a girl who is simultaneously a gamer, anime fan, gym-goer, and alt/cosplay girl — drastically different look in every photo
 - Lots of surface area to work with: gym lines, anime lines, cosplay references, personality contrasts
- Category 3 — Weird / Alt
 - Goth, alt, heavy tattoos, dyed hair, unusual makeup, quirky accessories (weird bracelets, rock collections, gothic posters in background)

- Signals a "crazy personality" — means you can use more offbeat, unusual lines and get away with them because she's likely the same
- Category 4 — Lover Girl
 - Elegant, high-maintenance, wants romance, trips, long-term commitment (mentions Dubai, hotel trips, marriage in profile/bio)
 - Has a large ego; strategy is to mirror exactly what she wants to hear and "sell her the dream" to get her to meet
 - Described as gullible and easy to fool with promises — the video is explicit that this is manipulation and advises leaving after sex
 - Caution: do NOT use edgy or addiction-style openers on lover girls — they will react badly
- Category 5 — Slut
 - Identifiable by revealing clothing, sexual poses, rave environments, belly button piercings, fishnets, dramatic eyelashes, heavy skin exposure
 - Primarily seeking attention and validation
 - Simplest category — straightforward approach, no elaborate framing needed

🗨️ Openers and How to Match Them to Category 0:225

- Core logic: using any opener on any girl is possible but suboptimal — picking the right opener for the category "increases your success rate massively"
 - Analogy used: "Using the wrong opener is like eating soup with a fork — possible, but difficult. Why would you?"
 - Girls are now more experienced with copy-paste lines (e.g., classic "what's missing from your pictures" line no longer works because girls say "I've heard this before")
 - The system has evolved toward profile-specific, thought-out openers

Opener	Category
Her name	Universal
"Do you know what I'm saying in your pictures?"	Universal
"I have a complaint about your profile"	Universal
"I have a great idea"	Universal
"Thought the angel was meant to be on top of the Christmas tree"	Universal (seasonal)
"You're my third wife"	Universal
"What's my wifey doing on Tinder?"	Universal
"Missed our wedding"	Universal
"There's an error in your profile"	Universal

Opener	Category
"Ever watched Naruto lately?"	Universal
"Are you a cardiologist cuz you look like you fix broken hearts?"	Universal
"Do you know what you remind me of?"	Weird/Alt (compare to something like a bottle of alcohol — "you're my addiction")
"Are you thinking what I'm thinking?"	Lover Girl / Slut (pivot to fantasy, whipped cream, couple life)
"Seems like I found my gym wifey"	Niche (gym girl)
"You know you have one of my weaknesses"	Niche (reference her specific hobby or eyes)
"You should smile more in your pictures"	Niche
"You look like my celebrity crush"	Niche (only use if there's an actual look-alike — can use ChatGPT to find one)
"You look like you can max out the hip thrust machine"	Niche (gym girl)

- Applied examples by category:
 - Gym/Anime Niche girl: "Looks like I found my gym wifey" OR "I had a great idea — anime and cuddling"
 - Weird/Alt girl: "You know what you remind me of? A bottle of alcohol — you're my addiction" OR reference tattoos ("I need a tattoo tour"), bracelets ("we need matching couple bracelets"), background details (gothic poster, weird shoes)
 - Lover Girl: "You figure what I'm thinking?" then pivot to Dubai dreams, fancy lifestyle, couple fantasy
 - Universal girl with nothing notable: opener using her name or a simple universal line
- ChatGPT is explicitly recommended as a tool for finding celebrity look-alikes and generating niche knowledge

The Right Time to Close 0:491

- Two failure modes exist:
 - Closing too fast → she gets freaked out and ghosts
 - Taking too long → she loses interest, ghosts, or loses respect (may agree to a date and not show up)
- Three conversation stages defined:

Stage	Signals	What to Do
End of conversation ("Green Zone")	Girl is flirty, warm, bubbly, openly mentioning wanting to meet herself	Close immediately — safe, no hesitation

Stage	Signals	What to Do
Middle of conversation	She's warming up, more open, but not fully there yet	Hint at meeting, keep building — too risky to close directly
Beginning of conversation	Zero chemistry, no rapport, complete strangers	Do NOT ask for number regardless of looks — she has no reason to say yes

- Important caveat: real conversations have many variables — a conversation can be at the "end stage" from the very first message if the girl opens with high interest
 - The stage framework is a simplification; you must "read between the lines"
- Key closing signals to watch for:
 - Girl sends multiple kisses (x's) unprompted
 - Girl asks logistics questions ("where are you from?", "are you in Warsaw right now?")
 - Girl suggests moving to another app herself
 - Girl proposes a specific date or event herself
 - Girl sends her own Instagram/social media unprompted

Four Conversation Case Studies 0:625

- Case Study 1 — Instant green zone (Universal girl, Madrid bio)
 - Girl messaged first: "I'm going to save you from ordering the wrong thing on every menu ever. When can I start this public service?"
 - Why it worked: the guy's bio said "Madrid for the week" — exotic/tourism appeal made her initiate
 - Conversation was already at end stage from message one
 - Response: "Hey, how sweet of you. You can start on our date" → she said "Sure, tell me when" → immediately sent client's Instagram → done
 - Lesson: when it's green zone, don't hesitate or waste time
- Case Study 2 — Slut/Lover Girl hybrid ("I have a complaint" opener)
 - Started light with "I have a complaint about your profile" to probe which category she really was
 - She responded with intrigue, then returned a compliment and started sending multiple x's (kisses) → high interest signal
 - Seeded the close naturally by talking about "getting off the apps before others get jealous" — she suggested moving to the next app herself
 - Got the number easily
- Case Study 3 — Lover Girl (missed the window, recovery)
 - Girl's bio: long-term partner mention, conservative first photo
 - Made the "complaint about your profile" opener — could have closed immediately but didn't → missed the opportunity

- Recovery tactic: changed topics, pivoted to couple fantasy ("We need to take pictures of you with my arms around you")
- Diagnostic technique used: asked "arms around your waist or neck?" — if she says neck, she's more sexually open; if waist, she's a true lover girl → she said waist, confirming lover girl
- Asked "what are you looking for?" to rebuild rapport and create a second close opportunity
- Mirrored her answer (long-term relationship) back to her
- Used ChatGPT to identify her nail type from her photo → she was stunned, felt he had rare knowledge → used the goodwill to ask for her number → got it immediately with a kiss
- Lesson: over-texting here was a "waste of time" but eliminated all friction when asking for the number
- Case Study 4 — High-interest rave girl (Chad account)
 - Girl opened with: "You're the most beautiful man I've seen in my life. Please be my rave husband." — maximum interest from the start
 - Did NOT close immediately despite high interest because she started asking personal questions ("where are you from?") — cutting the conversation short would have killed the flow and made the eventual date harder
 - Rule broken deliberately: sometimes extending the conversation makes the real-world meetup easier, even if it breaks the "close quickly" rule
 - Mirrored her energy, asked questions back, added flirty comments, used ChatGPT rave knowledge ("Max knows everything about raves")
 - She eventually said: "30th of July, going solo, want to join me?" — she set up the date herself
 - She then sent her Instagram herself → asked for number → got both
 - Lesson: when a girl is highly invested, let her lead and adapt to her pace rather than forcing a premature close

● Live Texting Walkthroughs 0:1050

- All conducted on a real client account in real time, showing multiple active matches
- Girl 1 — Sophie (Universal/slight gym niche)
 - Opener: "You know, I might have a mini crush on you, Sophie" (universal name opener)
 - She replied positively but asked "why are you so far away?"
 - Response plan: "I'm currently traveling. My location should be closer now. I'm now in Poland and need a tour guide" — using exotic/travel appeal
- Girl 2 — Universal/Lover Girl hybrid
 - Same universal opener; she warmed up
 - Next line planned: "especially if you're going to be my tour guide" — continuing exotic appeal angle
- Girl 3 — Volleyball player (Niche — she messaged first)
 - She opened: "Do you play volleyball?" → established she's a professional player
 - Strategy: use ChatGPT to generate a real volleyball tactic ("sliding a flat hand on a fallen ball") to display niche knowledge, boost status, and appear credible

- She responded enthusiastically, wanting to meet at a volleyball game the following week and confirming she's currently in Warsaw
- Girl 4 — Natalia (Weird/Alt, Poland-specific)
 - Opener: "You know what you remind me of?" → "A bottle of rosé" (chose rosé specifically because she's Polish, not just generic "alcohol")
 - Her question: "Why do you see me like a rosé?"
 - Response: "Because you'd give me a headache and I'll keep coming back" → she loved it → "You can be our next addiction" → she said "I've been addictive"
 - Transitioned to: "We'll have to see after our date" → she asked "What would the date look like?"
 - Response strategy: don't give a literal answer — stay flirty and vague, use the travel/exotic angle ("I'd pretend I know my way around Warsaw but I'd get lost and need help")
- Girl 5 — Conservative/Niche (photo upgrade angle)
 - Opener: "We could upgrade your money pictures" (she had good photos already)
 - She asked how → "Taking them again with my arm around you"
 - She was reserved: "Not the worst idea" — cautious, doesn't want to give too much away
 - Next move: reassure ("we would look good together") → she pushed back slightly, wanting emotional connection confirmed first
 - She then asked "What are you looking for on Tinder?" → plan: reply "long term hopefully" because her bio says long term
 - She then asked if he has Instagram → successful close: send Instagram directly
- Girl 6 — Niche dog girl
 - Opener: "We're going to steal your dog" (spotted dog in photo)
 - Mistake: it wasn't her dog — recovery: "Why are you lying about having pets on Tinder?" → she laughed, explained she has a dog but not that one
 - Adapted: "I'll steal him instead" → playful back-and-forth about the dog needing a dad → gradually escalated energy toward sexual tension
 - Pivoted to cocktails date idea → she revealed she drinks, is less conservative than she appears
 - Kept intrigue high: when she asked what the date spot was → "Surprise. I have to be more of a gentleman" — framed as conservative/mysterious to maintain curiosity
- Recurring tactics across all live examples:
 - Exotic/travel appeal ("I'm new in Poland, I need a tour guide") used on nearly every girl
 - ChatGPT used openly for niche knowledge (volleyball tactics, AI overview used on the spot)
 - Matching her energy and bio keywords ("long term" mirrored back to lover girls)
 - Never giving a literal date answer — always stay flirty, vague, or surprising
 - Sending client's pre-made Instagram account as part of the close process