Contents

-  Book 1: Dot Com Secrets by Russell Brunson
-  Book 2: Buy Back Your Time by Dan Martell
-  Book 3: Expert Secrets by Russell Brunson

Book 1: Dot Com Secrets by Russell Brunson 0:00

- Brandon credits this book with helping him make "literally millions of dollars"
 - He carried the book in his backpack everywhere he went when he was first starting out
 - He reread it constantly during that early period
- Russell Brunson is described as one of Brandon's personal mentors
- Caveat: Brandon acknowledges much of the content feels dated now
 - He says he would not necessarily recommend it today
 - However, at the time of its release it was transformative for him

Book 2: Buy Back Your Time by Dan Martell 0:21

- Author: Dan Martell, whom Brandon refers to as "my boy Dan Martell"
- Core concept: calculate your effective hourly earnings from your business, then outsource any task that costs less per hour than you earn
 - By working during the time you would have spent on that task, you come out ahead financially
- Brandon illustrates this with a concrete example:
 - Assume you earn $100/hour from your business
 - You hire someone to clean your house for $50
 - You work during that time → you net $50 profit on the exchange
 - If instead you clean the house yourself, you don't "save" $50 — you actually lose $100 in foregone earnings
- Brandon notes he had been making this same argument for years before the book came out

- People frequently dismissed or mocked him for the idea
- He feels Dan Martell articulated it more clearly and persuasively than he had been able to

Book 3: Expert Secrets by Russell Brunson 0:44

- Also by Russell Brunson — Brandon says this one he still recommends today, unlike Dot Com Secrets
- Recommended for anyone:
 - Trying to build any kind of online business
 - Wanting to learn copywriting
- Brandon calls it "probably required reading" and "one of the best books on the subject"
- He rereads it once or twice every year and says he learns something new each time
