

Laptop lifestyle on steroids

Channel: Onem · Published: Aug 23, 2026 · Watch: <https://www.youtube.com/shorts/oeEbjGVf6GI> Source: full transcript

Executive Summary

A 30-second promotional clip showcasing the "ONDEMAND" laptop lifestyle — men working poolside — used as a sales pitch urging viewers to lock in membership at $450 before the price increases.

Contents

-  Behind-the-Scenes Lifestyle Flex
-  The Sales Pitch

Behind-the-Scenes Lifestyle Flex 0:00

- The speaker offers a "behind the scenes" look at the ONDEMAND lifestyle
 - Multiple people working on laptops gathered around a pool
 - Framed as a communal, social work environment — "all the boys out here"
- The poolside setup is presented as the aspirational end-goal
 - Described simply as "the dream life setup"

The Sales Pitch 0:10

- Viewers are urged to join or purchase something (referred to as a program or community) for $450
 - Framed as locking in a price before it rises in the future
- Tone is direct and dismissive of hesitation
 - "Don't be a fool. Lock in for 450."
 - "Stop being a little crybaby and get it sorted for the future."
- Closing appeal leans on assumed desire: "You know you want it in the future. So just get it done now."
 - Classic urgency/scarcity framing — act now to avoid paying more later